RFK, LBJ Move Closer on Viet Policy Question

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and the Johnson administration have moved closer on Viet Nam policy but the peace pact may be shaky because of remaining differences.

Out of a round of White House and senatorial activity Tuesday there emerged Kennedy's stated belief at a news conference that there are no differences between his and President Johnson's views on these issues: —He does not advocate but does not believe the door should be shut to the admission of Communists to an interim government — even before elections are held — if peace negotiators feel this is necessary.

—If elections are held, the United States should abide by the outcome, even if it puts Communists into a permanent government.

Kennedy, a New York Democrat, said he had discussed his stand with White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers and they agreed there were no fundamental differences in the position of the senator and the President.

"I find no disagreement between what Mr. Moyers has said and what I have said," Kennedy reported.

This patching up process seemed unlikely, however, to have much effect on the torrent of criticism other senatorial critics have directed against Johnson. And Kennedy indicated he, too, has some further matters to discuss where his views may cross White House policy.

The Senate goes back to work today on a $4.8-billion authorization bill covering part of the $12.3 billion in emergency military funds asked for Viet Nam. Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said he would call on his colleagues to end the policy debate and get to voting.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called his group together to decide whether to act now or continue testimony on the $415-million economic aid bill for South Viet Nam.

The Kennedy-Moyers pact did not appear to rest on entirely solid ground. Moyers had told a news conference there were no

Human Given Blame If Dog Gets Drunk

CHICAGO (AP) — When a drunken dog reels into Dr. Harry W. Boothe's office, the veterinarian does not prescribe the hair of the dog that bit him.

Rather, "you give him supportive therapy—dextrose injections, vitamin B. complex, intravenous fluids — and sympathy," Boothe says.

"In the acute stages, you pump his stomach — and, of course you cut off his source of supply."

That, Dr. Boothe said in an interview, is the same treatment given to a human alcoholic. But he said it is easier to break a canine boozehound of booze than a human because "basically, the dog is not voluntarily an alcoholic — somebody helped him get hooked."

Dr. Boothe made his comments Tuesday while attending the Illinois State Veterinary Medical Association convention, of which he is convention chairman. The 44-year-old veterinarian said he has seen enough alcoholic dogs to know that while the problem is rare, it exists.

His theory is that the insecure master with an alcohol problem uses his dog as a combination drinking buddy "when there's nobody else around to drink with" and as an extension of himself.

"He thinks his dog is as mixed up as he is," Dr. Boothe said.

Big Unions, LBJ at Odds Over Minimum Pay Boost

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 20-cent argument over a minimum wage increase put President Johnson today on a collision course that threatened a political blowup with organized labor.

"We can do it without the Democrats and without the Republicans," AFL-CIO President George Meany said of labor's demands for minimum wage and other legislation in Congress.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, warning that Johnson will not bargain with big labor over the amount of a minimum wage increase, said the "antagonism" expressed by AFL-CIO leaders may jeopardize labor's goals in Congress and Johnson's efforts to prevent runaway inflation.

No one would say so out loud, but the atmosphere here indicated the once strong political alliance of labor and the Democratic party threatened to crumble unless somebody backs down.

The AFL-CIO was a major force in the sweeping election victories of Johnson and other Democrats in 1964.

The minimum wage dispute, informed sources said, was a major symptom of a serious situation that could gravely affect the nation's economy for years to come, this year's congressional elections and the next two presidential elections.

The scrap reportedly caused telephone calls from the White House to here. Details of the conversations could not be learned immediately.

The giant labor federation's Committee on Political Education was expected to give the first major clue today of what the AFL-CIO will do politically to back up its grievances that Johnson and the big Democratic congressional majority which labor helped elect aren't living up to promises made during the campaign.

Meany said "intimations" that President Johnson will recommend minimum wage hikes from the present $1.25 to only $1.40 this year and $1.60 in 1968 could lead to potentially serious political repercussions that could even lead to the possibility of setting up a U.S. labor party.

But Meany said the AFL-CIO was not now ready to make that serious a break with the Democrats.

The AFL-CIO goes along with the reported White House recommendations for a $1.40 minimum wage this year, but demands an increase to $1.60 next year — not in 1968 or later as Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers reportedly recommended.

Soviets Put 2 Dogs into Space Orbit

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet scientists have launched two dogs into orbit in an experiment apparently aimed at taking man farther and longer into space.

An official announcement said the dogs were lofted Tuesday aboard the satellite Cosmos 110. It said the animals, named Veterok — Breeze — and Ugolyok — Little Coal-Nut — were orbiting the earth every 96 minutes 18 seconds.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the farthest point of their orbit is more than 500 miles from the earth.

This is the point where radiation may be dangerous to living organisms. They may be trying out protective garb for deep space travel.

Western scientists believe that if their journey is successful it will be followed by a new Soviet space spectacular.

It could be an attempt to put a satellite, probably carrying more dogs, around the moon. Or it could be a try at landing dogs on the moon to test conditions for sending humans there.

More likely, these scientists believe, would be an attempt to orbit a large space laboratory around the earth.

Dr. Sam To Hear Review of Appeal

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard and his wife planned to leave for Washington by automobile today to sit in on the U. S. Supreme Court hearing of his new appeal from his murder conviction.

Sheppard, a former Bay Village osteopath, was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment in the slaying of his first wife, Marilyn, in their home on July 4, 1954.

He is appealing on grounds that he did not receive a fair trial because of the publicity given his case.

U.S. To Call Reserves If Asian War Widens

Solution Still Sought Here Concerning Police Pay Hike

Circleville Police feel little was accomplished concerning their request for a wage increase following a meeting Tuesday night with City Council representatives.

The special session was conducted in the Council Chambers at City Hall. Chief Bernard Wolfe and Lt. Glenn Jones of the Circleville Fire Department were present.

Frank Barnhill, Council Finance Committee chairman, assured police an intense study of the city's budget will be conducted. He indicated if funds can be found to grant wage increases, other city departments also will be considered.

The finance chairman pointed out there might be portions of the budget which could be shaved. He said the possibility exists that income from real estate taxes might be larger than anticipated.

BARNHILL plans to check with County Auditor Marvin Rhoades to learn if first half real estate collections indicate increased revenue in this area.

Sgt. LeRoy Hawks, serving as spokesman for police, asked Barnhill point blank if the police department's request would be given first consideration and the full amount of their request granted.

When Barnhill indicated other departments also would have to be considered, Hawks stated: "If we don't get what we are asking, you might as well forget it." He then left the meeting which already had lasted more than two hours.

In addition to Hawks the police department was represented by Patrolman William Goff and Chief Robert Temple.

Fire Chief Wolfe, in a prepared statement to members of Council, asked that men of his department be given equal consideration if pay hikes are granted.

Chief Wolfe said he faced a manpower shortage similar to that of the police department and asked a civil service examination be given in order to fill expected vacancies.

WOLFE said Fireman Tom Smith has resigned, plus he is faced with the possibility two other vacancies might be created later this year. He noted it has been more than a year since a civil service examination has been offered here.

Barnhill said his committee would have a definite answer for police at the next council meeting, Mar. 1, relative to availability of funds necessary

LBJ Proposes Vast Plan To End River Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proposed to Congress today a vast program to combat pollution, clean entire river basins and change from "a barren America, bereft of its beauty and shorn of its sustenance."

Johnson sent Congress a long special message spelling out details. The message lacked any price tag for all he has in mind.

But Johnson asked $50 million for a single phase — a demonstration program for cleaning rivers.

"I propose that we begin now," he said, "to clean and preserve entire river basins from their sources to their mouths."

The ultimate goal is to clean all of the nation's rivers, the President said, and eventually these projects will pay their own way from money local communities collect from users of the waters.

Johnson had some other proposals: That Congress authorize completion of the National Park System by 1972—the 100th anniversary of Yellowstone, the first national park. He mentioned especially a Redwood national park in Northern California and said he will submit separate legislation to establish it. He said it will be costly but we must move swiftly to save "the majesty of a forest whose trees soared upward 2000 years ago."

He said he will be passing along legislative proposals for development of a nationwide system of trails, particularly near metropolitan areas, patterned along lines of the Appalachian Trail which swings along the mountains from Maine to Georgia.

Johnson asked that the Interior Department be given the responsibility for leading the national "clean water effort." He said he is submitting to Congress a plan to transfer to Interior the Water Pollution Control Administration now in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Beyond that, the president proposed establishment of a national water commission to bring together "the very best minds in the country" to judge present efforts and recommend long-range plans.

A tough tightening of enforcement authority got Johnson's approval. He recommended among other things that the federal government be given authority immediately to bring suit to stop pollution that threatens public health or welfare. He suggested that private citizens be allowed to sue in federal court for relief from pollution. He proposed registration of all existing or potential sources of pollution, with authority for U.S. officials to inspect them.

4 Churches Form Lutheran Council

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland has been selected as the site for organizing a new agency representing four Lutheran Churches in America called the Lutheran Council in the United States of America (LCUSA).

LCUSA will follow a joint program of theological study and Christian service and will be the successor to the present National Lutheran Council, church officials said.

The four churches involved are the American Lutheran Church, Lutheran Church in America, Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the Synod of Evangelical Lutheran Churches.

10 Reported Missing After Fire Hits Hotel

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Fire swept a 50-year-old stucco and wood hotel early today and police reported hours later that at least 10 persons had not been accounted for.

Police said their report of 10 missing was based on a check showing 36 persons were registered. The hotel is near the center of this Long Island village, the Nassau County seat, Frances Anderson, manager, said the hotel register was destroyed in the blaze.

Policeman's Son Held in Slaying

CLEVELAND (AP)—The 25-year-old son of a Cleveland policeman is being held in connection with the beating and shooting death Tuesday night of Sam Caputo, 43, an ex-convict. Police say the suspect has admitted the slaying.

The suspect, who was not identified, was arrested by Shaker Heights Police Lt. Elmer Schieferstein on Rexway Road. Schieferstein was first on the scene after a resident reported several men were fighting in the street, shots had been fired and someone was trying to put a body in the trunk of a car.

Squatters Claim Canyon

MECCA, Calif. (AP) — Broken-down autos, dilapidated shacks and tattered blankets mark the homesites of squatters who have occupied a remote Southern California desert canyon for the winter.

The squatters — about 300 of them — live on Indian and government land, have no nearby water, no sanitation facilities and little hope for the future, the Los Angeles Times reported.

The men, women and children have chosen to winter by the steep sandstone cliffs on an old Indian reservation in Box Canyon, about six miles from this small community.

Water is hauled in by the bucket and jugful, picked up 20 miles north at drinking fountains in Coachella City Park.

Meals are cooked over open fires of mesquite wood, and candles are used for light. The families include farm laborers, pensioners and drifters. The pensioners said they went to Box Canyon because their "Social Security is too little. We don't know where else to go."

No End Seen For Draft

McNamara Gives Congress Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told Congress today that if the Communists escalate the war in Asia Reservists will have to be called to active duty.

"Such a contingency," McNamara told a joint session of the Senate's Armed Services Committee and Appropriations subcommittee, "would necessitate at least a partial mobilization, including the callup of some or all of our Reserve forces and the extension of active duty tours."

The defense chief also put it on record that the callup of Reserve units was considered and rejected last summer when the decision was made to beef up American fighting forces in South Viet Nam.

"We anticipated that the conflict would be drawn out and that under those circumstances the Reserves would be a wasting asset if called up for only one year," McNamara said in a 220-page military posture statement. Present statutes limit the callup to one year.

Unless world conditions change, McNamara said, "we cannot look forward to discontinuation of the draft in the coming decade." But he added that under present conditions reliance will continue to be placed on Regular forces.

He suggested that, although the authority to draft will continue to be needed, maximum reliance should be placed on the volunteer system.

He put total U.S. military manpower at 2,653,142 for fiscal 1965, but said the number of men in the armed services will rise to an estimated 2,987,343 in fiscal 1966 and 3,093,109 in fiscal 1967.

"Presently, we anticipate that draft calls will continue at a relatively high level during most of this calendar year, with month-to-month fluctuations depending on such factors as the trends in enlistment and re-enlistment," McNamara said.

The nation's defense chief also declared that America "stands ready to facilitate a just settlement" in South Viet

Half-Fast March Fails

EDITOR'S NOTE — Jazz clarinetist Pete Fountain looks forward to Mardi Gras like a kid waits for Santa Claus. He closes his French Quarter night club and enjoys his "day" leading his marching club. This is his day as told by Bill Crider who marched with him Tuesday.

By BILL CRIDER

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The great annual march of the Taff-Fast Walking Club fell short of its goal. It always does. But it was a splendid effort.

We started bravely, our little band of feathered Indian chiefs, armed with rubber-tipped spears and firewater.

We ended in the crush of humanity on Canal Street with our chief of chiefs, Pete Fountain, being assisted to sanctuary, his features wreathed in a beatific smile, still clutching his clarinet.

We started with the gray light of dawn, donning Indian chief costumes, war paint, feather bonnets. Then off in a covey of taxis, with motorcycle police as outriders, to the staging area—a bar on the river front.

The spectacle of Mardi Gras was already forming as we drove through the new sunlight. Devils were appearing. And clowns, pirates, men in prison stripes, pretty Bo Peeps.

We picked up our spears at the bar, amidst a great popping of beer cans being opened. Firewater was distributed.

The Onward Marching Band,

hired for the great walk, warmed up in the street and so did the crowd. Pete and some of his musicians stood in with them occasionally, as the spirit moved them.

With each mile the crowd grew and pressed tighter. Fifteen blocks from Canal, grinning police were scarcely able to clear a narrow path. The firewater was gone but cold beers were handed in by kindly souls on the sidelines.

So we never made it down Bourbon Street, as planned. It would have been impossible, anyhow, without a bulldozer.

Next year, when the club theme will be Viking instead of Indian, we may make it all the way.

They can always carry you in on your shield.

371 Red Dead Counted by U.S.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. military command reported today at least 371 Communists killed after 24 hours of intensive bombardment by planes, artillery and 7th Fleet destroyers.

Four strikes by U.S. Air Force F100 Super Sabres caught two companies of Viet Cong in the open near Phan Thiet, on the coast 100 miles east of Saigon, and killed 110 Reds, spokesmen said. The jets swooped down on the Communists to aid government troops tied up in heavy fighting with the Viet Cong.

As explosives rained down on the Communists with new fury, Allied spokesmen reported that the number of Reds killed last week doubled while American and South Vietnamese casualties declined.

A U.S. spokesman reported 83 Americans killed, 354 wounded and 4 missing compared with 91 killed, 423 wounded and 5 missing in the previous week. Government losses dropped from 249 killed and 105 missing to 197 killed and 77 missing.

The claimed enemy toll rose to 1,357 killed, the second highest total of the year, and 122 captured last week. In the previous week, 684 Reds were reported killed.

The air war continued against North Viet Nam Tuesday. Seven missions by Air Force F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers blasted buildings, roads and storage areas between the 17th Parallel frontier and the coastal city of Vinh and around the old French fortress of Dien Bien Phu.

Navy carrier jets flew 15 missions against bridges, roads and ferry points around Dong Ap and Dong Hoi, south of Vinh.

Air Force B52s edged closer to the Communist North this morning, unloading their massive explosives on suspected Viet Cong targets in Thua Thien Province 45 miles south of the 17th Parallel. The bombers roared in to support a government operation in the area that has netted 25 Communists killed since Monday, a government spokesman said.

Half-Fast March Fails

EDITOR'S NOTE — Jazz clarinetist Pete Fountain looks forward to Mardi Gras like a kid waits for Santa Claus. He closes his French Quarter night club and enjoys his "day" leading his marching club. This is his day as told by Bill Crider who marched with him Tuesday.

By BILL CRIDER

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The great annual march of the Taff-Fast Walking Club fell short of its goal. It always does. But it was a splendid effort.

We started bravely, our little band of feathered Indian chiefs, armed with rubber-tipped spears and firewater.

We ended in the crush of humanity on Canal Street with our chief of chiefs, Pete Fountain, being assisted to sanctuary, his features wreathed in a beatific smile, still clutching his clarinet.

We started with the gray light of dawn, donning Indian chief costumes, war paint, feather bonnets. Then off in a covey of taxis, with motorcycle police as outriders, to the staging area—a bar on the river front.

The spectacle of Mardi Gras was already forming as we drove through the new sunlight. Devils were appearing. And clowns, pirates, men in prison stripes, pretty Bo Peeps.

We picked up our spears at the bar, amidst a great popping of beer cans being opened. Firewater was distributed.

The Onward Marching Band,

hired for the great walk, warmed up in the street and so did the crowd. Pete and some of his musicians stood in with them occasionally, as the spirit moved them.

With each mile the crowd grew and pressed tighter. Fifteen blocks from Canal, grinning police were scarcely able to clear a narrow path. The firewater was gone but cold beers were handed in by kindly souls on the sidelines.

So we never made it down Bourbon Street, as planned. It would have been impossible, anyhow, without a bulldozer.

Next year, when the club theme will be Viking instead of Indian, we may make it all the way.

They can always carry you in on your shield.

Blue Cross Lists Plan Connected with Medicare

Blue Cross of Central Ohio today unveiled a new plan that will fill many gaps in the hospitalization portion of the Medicare program.

Known as Blue Cross — 65, it will enable more than 18,000 non-group members in the Plan's 29 county area who are age 65 and over to continue Blue Cross membership.

Howard C. Franz, Blue Cross president, said, the plan is designed to fill gaps in the Medicare program, and at the same time reduce the cost of Blue Cross coverage by eliminating those benefits which would be duplicated under Medicare.

Here is a summary of the health care services which will not be paid under the Medicare program (The coverage to be provided by the new Blue Cross — 65 plan appears in parentheses):

1. Medicare does not pay the first $40 of a hospital stay. (Blue Cross-65 will pay the $40.)

2. Medicare provides a benefit period of 90 days, but from the 60th to 90th day the Medicare patient must share the cost by paying $10 per day toward a semi-private room (Blue Cross — 65 will pay the $10 from the 61st through 90th day.)

3. Medicare, with rare exceptions, will not cover services received outside the United States. (For members who require hospital care outside the United States, Blue Cross-65 will pay up to $15 a day for room and board and up to $150 for other hospital services. The number of days of care on this coverage are the same as those on regular Medicare hospitalization protection.)

4. Medicare does not cover treatment in the hospital emergency room. (Blue Cross — 65 will cover hospital charges incidental to emergency room care within 72 hours following an accident.)

5. Medicare does not cover hospital services incidental to out-patient surgery. (Blue Cross — 65 will cover these services.)

6. Beginning January 1, 1967, Medicare will cover in full the first 20 days of care in an extended care facility, but for the next 80 days the patient must share the cost by paying $5 per day. (Blue Cross-65 will pay the $5 charge for the 80-day period.)

The rates for the non-group Blue Cross-65 plan will be $2.55 per month per person billed quarterly. This rate is 64 per cent below that charged the majority of persons over 65 now covered.

differences "if Sen. Kennedy did not propose a coalition government with Communist participation before elections are held."

Kennedy said he wasn't proposing it. But he said Americans must be realistic about the fact that negotiators might want to include them. He said it is a decision that can't be made now.

This seemed to put the New York senator at odds with his old friend, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, a key presidential adviser.

Taylor said at one point that "if he (Kennedy) means negotiating them into a coalition government, I'd not be for it."

Taylor said in a later statement that the way to get the unconditional negotiations the administration favors is not to set any preconditions.

Kennedy said that when he said at a news conference last Saturday that the Viet Cong and its political arm, the National Liberation Front, must be given responsibility and power in any new Saigon government, he was thinking of the formation of an eventual permanent government.

He said he was surprised at administration reaction to this. He referred several times to a statement by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey that this would mean putting a fox in a chicken coop.

Kennedy said the United States should not "voluntarily follow the course of force" in trying to impose its ideals on Viet Nam.

Johnson arranged for Humphrey to give congressional leaders a report on his Asian tour at a White House meeting Thursday morning. Movers said Humphrey will answer any questions about his journey.

to grant any or part of the requested salary hike.

Other councilmen present were Robert Turner, John Jenkins, David Crawford and Joseph Bell.

At the beginning of the meeting, Councilman Turner stated he was disturbed and disappointed Safety Director Miller Fissell was not present at the meeting.

He contended the police department's problem was "40 per cent wages and 60 per cent administration."

Councilman Jenkins said he felt the wage increase proposal was brought up in the wrong manner. He claimed chiefs of the departments and the safety director should "speak for the men."

POLICE Chief Temple suggested Council could enact a city income tax as a means of gaining necessary funds for wage increases for the various departments.

However, Barnhill explained that legislation required under the income tax recommendation would consume considerable time. He added that Council could not at this time grant an increase on the basis that such legislation would be initiated and approved.

Police, during a meeting Saturday with councilmen, said the department will face a manpower loss unless increases are granted. However, there was no indication today that any officers have decided to leave the force.

Two Motorists Fined $150 For OMVI

The Circleville Municipal Court traffic docket listed two motorists who were found guilty of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants.

They were Clara Miller, 29, Mt. Sterling and Jerry Chavis, 45, Chillicothe. Both were fined $150 and costs and sentenced to three days in the county jail. In addition, Judge Sterling Lamb ordered their driving rights suspended for six months.

Other motorists on the court docket were:

Raymond G. McNeil, 47, Adelphi; Marvin Groves, 44, Bucyrus; both fined $10 and costs for exceeding the speed limit by 10 miles per hour.

Bertram Peterson, 41, Columbus; Junior Mullins, 26, Whittier, Calif.; $20 and costs for speeding 80 miles per hour in a 60 mile zone.

It's Too Early To Judge

British See Sign Soviet May Aid Peace Move

MOSCOW (AP) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said today it is too early to judge whether there has been progress on world issues in his talks with Soviet leaders.

British informants said Tuesday they saw signs of Soviet willingness to support Wilson's call for keeping the Middle East peaceful and end the Viet Nam war.

The wisp of optimism came as Britain's disarmament minister, Lord Chalfont, made a surprise call on the North Vietnamese envoy, Lee Chang, in a bid to get peace talks started. There was no immediate indication of the outcome of this meeting.

Wilson met again today with

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and was scheduled to have talks with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev. His meeting with Brezhnev had not been on the program and was arranged during the night, British sources said.

Wilson also was to call today on former Soviet President Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The British prime minister said he had continued discussions with world problems with Kosygin during the intervals at a ballet performance Tuesday night in the Bolshoi Theater.

"I talked again on these issues with the premier then and that will lead to further exploration of them today," he said.

County School Heads Study Use of Federal Funds

The executive heads of the three county school districts met yesterday with superintendent of schools George D. McDowell in his office to discuss application of funds available under Title II of the Secondary and Elementary Education Act.

Teays Valley has $4,120.48 available, Westfall $2,902.90 and Logan Elm $1,881.02. The funds must be earmarked for school libraries with the highest priority going to elementary schools.

The application specifies that at least 50 per cent of the funds must go for elementary libraries. McDowell told the executive heads.

McDowell suggested the schools strengthen their supplemental reading programs with the funds.

The funds may be used for the purchasing of school library resources, textbooks and other printed and published teaching materials. All materials must be made available on an equitable basis to children and teachers in all public and private elementary and secondary schools.

Excluded are equipment, materials intended for religious instruction and materials consumed in use or those which cannot be expected to last for more than one year.

A proposed plan for a mobile film library was discarded by the executive heads since Teays Valley would not be able to contribute toward the joint project.

Benis Lutz said Teays Valley had only $2,800 available under the federal program. Jud Lanman reported Westfall had $40,000 remaining which had not been budgeted and John Henn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, is expected to be operated upon soon for a blocked urethra, an aide said today.

Lausche is in Bethesda Naval Hospital. The surgery originally was planned for today, but the senator has been running a fever from a cold and the operation was postponed.

DUNBAR, Pa. (AP)—An explosion ripped through a building at the Keystone Fireworks Manufacturing Co. plant in this southwestern Pennsylvania community today, killing at least four persons and possibly six.

Seven persons were rushed to a hospital for treatment.

Fire departments from five nearby communities were fighting a blaze which followed the blast.

Webb Watson, a plant employee, said some 50 persons were at work at the time.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, didn't lose his poise when introduced as a Democrat.

James F. Malone, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, introduced Shafer at the organization's annual dinner by calling him the choice of the "Democratic-I mean Republican executive committee."

Shafer drew a laugh when he started his talk to the heavily Republican group with, "Fellow Democrats..."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Joyce plans to start driving her maroon hardtop car to work every day. To Miss Taylor, 31, it's another step in her battle against a wheelchair.

Her legs paralyzed since 1947, she passed the test Tuesday to get her driver's license. She scored 89 out of 100 as she guided her special hand-controlled car over the test route.

Since she was injured in a shooting accident, Miss Taylor has graduated from Manual High School and the University of Louisville. She is employed as a draftsman by the Kentucky Highway Department.

Flu Outbreak in Space Is Considered Possible

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — An influenza outbreak in space?

It could happen. The flu bug, or any of its infectious virus friends for that matter, can strike an astronaut just as easily as it can the next man.

Astronauts could unknowingly carry the virus into space, a hostile environment where razor-sharp control of a spacecraft is essential to survival.

With this in mind, the space agency has awarded a $38,000 contract to the U.S. Public Health Service to determine the best approach to control and early diagnosis of viral infection in astronauts on a flight.

Doctors at the Manned Spacecraft Center agree that it is not a question of can an astronaut be infected by a virus while in space, but rather can it be prevented.

Nam, but not negotiate a surrender.

In his statement, McNamara echoed the Viet Nam policies expressed recently by President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

He emphasized the administration's effort to bring about negotiations for peace and praised the military help being given in South Viet Nam by Australia, New Zealand and South Korea.

At another point in his statement, McNamara discussed the Sino-Soviet rift and said:

"The contest between the two Communist powers opens up new dangers and new opportunities for the free world."

McNamara said the Chinese have rejected Soviet overtures for better relations and united action in support of the North Vietnamese government. Their refusal has caused the loss of some support among the "neutral" Communists, he said, and led even to a reluctance by North Viet Nam and North Korea to echo Peking's propaganda attacks on Moscow.

But because Moscow's strategy is to refute Peking's charges of Russian "connivance with U.S. imperialism," McNamara said, "we must continue to expect a harsh anti-American tone in Soviet policy pronouncements."

McNamara said there is growing recognition in the free world that the Viet Nam war is the result of Communist aggression and "is controlled from Hanoi, urged on by Peking." The American effort to seek negotiation is widely supported by non-Communist nations, he said, and added:

"However, there is widespread concern lest the war widen, particularly as a result of Chinese intervention, and a tendency to let the U.S. bear the main burden for a war that many feel is remote."

"It is possible we might start a flight with a man in the pre-clinical stage of some viral infection," Dr. Walter Kemmerer, the center's monitor on the virus control study, said in an interview. "We want to have techniques to enable us to prevent this from happening, and to detect that it is happening," he added.

"Also, we want to know how to prevent one astronaut from transmitting it to another inside the spacecraft."

The chances of a virus striking an astronaut will increase when flight crews get larger.

Just what would be done — whether the mission would be ended — will depend largely on the seriousness of the illness and how far the ship was from earth, Kemmerer said.

While in earth orbit, the spacemen could be rushed home for medical treatment in a relatively short period of time, but on excursions of several weeks or months to other planets, they would be forced to be their own doctors, while receiving instructions from medical men monitoring flight from earth.

No American astronaut has reported even so much as a slight cold in space.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, command pilot of the 14-day flight of Gemini 7, caused some moments of concern last December when he sneezed while in orbit. It was called by some "the sneeze heard around the world."

Doctors monitoring the medical data beamed back to earth from Gemini 7 quickly checked Borman's condition, and detected no sign of impending illness.

Kemmerer said that the virus control contract calls for a final report within a year.

Ross Names 3 to Airport Committee

Ross County Commissioners named three persons Monday to represent their county on a joint Pickaway-Ross County Airport Committee.

Named as Ross representatives were Dr. Robert E. Swank, Paul Conaway and Stuart E. Withers.

They will serve with the three-man committee from Pickaway County; Allan Bray, manager of the Du Pont Plant here; John H. Dunlap, Williamsport; and Donald Goodchild, construction contractor.

Members of the joint committee are to make reports at regular intervals to commissioners of their respective counties.

PICKAWAY members will report to the Community Action Committee, recently created by the county commissioners, and the Ross County men will report to the county's airport committee.

Conaway is president of Brewer & Brewer Sons Inc. and has had no previous experience on airport committees. Dr. Swank and Withers have served on the Chillicothe Area Chamber of Commerce airport committees.

Included on the agenda for discussion was the problems confronting the state department in administering the fair bus bill. Hanford Combs was to direct the discussion.

Plans for state reorganizational study was also slated for discussion, McDowell noted.

Blue Cross Lists Plan Connected with Medicare

Blue Cross of Central Ohio today unveiled a new plan that will fill many gaps in the hospitalization portion of the Medicare program.

Known as Blue Cross — 65, it will enable more than 18,000 non-group members in the Plan's 29 county area who are age 65 and over to continue Blue Cross membership.

The rates for the non-group Blue Cross-65 plan will be $2.55 per month per person billed quarterly. This rate is 64 per cent below that charged the majority of persons over 65 now covered.

France Avoids Becoming 'U.S. Economic Colony'

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle's government is determined to keep France from becoming an economic colony of the United States, Charles de Gaulle, French foreign trade secretary said today.

Chambrun told The Associated Press that this concern helps explain French stockpiling of American gold, close bargaining in the Common Market, the fruitlessness of the Kennedy Round of tariff negotiations and even the costly French program of atomic research.

"We could permit a much larger American presence in our economy, as the Germans are doing, and it would be easy politically: there would be more jobs and faster growth," he said.

"But to be politically responsible to the generations to come, we have to see that these generations have the weapons to defend themselves — economic weapons."

"If we did nothing, in a few years we would have the same problems as Latin America has. The idea has taken hold in American financial circles that the way to take care of the United States' favorable balance of trade with France is to export capital. This is a policy whereby we could become a medium-developed country in the future."

"This explains our attitude on gold. We don't want to take America's gold, we just want to stop the overabundance of American capital in France."

All of the estimated $1.5 billion U.S. investment in France is not unwelcome. Chambrun cited the large operation of International Business Machines as an example.

"IBM does a lot of research here," he said, "and in all it helps raise the general technological level of French industry."

Chambrun is a member of the opposition Catholic Popular Republican Movement. But, he says, "I've always been a Gaullist." He joined the President's Cabinet last month.

Last year, after three years of deficits in its international balance of trade, France had a modest surplus. But, the minister said, "the structure of our exterior commerce is not very good. It would be better to have a sound structure with a trade deficit."

"The principal weakness in the structure is agriculture, which for us is a grave social problem," he said.

About 20 per cent of the French labor force is engaged in agriculture, compared with 7 per cent in the United States and about 10 per cent in Germany.

With the subsidies paid to bolster farm income, agriculture after education, is the largest item in France's national budget.

Taylor said in a later statement that the way to get the unconditional negotiations the administration favors is not to set any preconditions.

Kennedy said that when he said at a news conference last Saturday that the Viet Cong and its political arm, the National Liberation Front, must be given responsibility and power in any new Saigon government, he was thinking of the formation of an eventual permanent government.

He said he was surprised at administration reaction to this. He referred several times to a statement by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey that this would mean putting a fox in a chicken coop.

Kennedy said the United States should not "voluntarily follow the course of force" in trying to impose its ideals on Viet Nam.

Johnson arranged for Humphrey to give congressional leaders a report on his Asian tour at a White House meeting Thursday morning. Moyers said Humphrey will answer any questions about his journey.

to grant any or part of the requested salary hike.

Other councilmen present were Robert Turner, John Jenkins, David Crawford and Joseph Bell.

At the beginning of the meeting, Councilman Turner stated he was disturbed and disappointed Safety Director Miller Fissell was not present at the meeting.

He contended the police department's problem was "40 per cent wages and 60 per cent administration."

Councilman Jenkins said he felt the wage increase proposal was brought up in the wrong manner. He claimed chiefs of the departments and the safety director should "speak for the men."

POLICE Chief Temple suggested Council could enact a city income tax as a means of gaining necessary funds for wage increases for the various departments.

However, Barnhill explained that legislation required under the income tax recommendation would consume considerable time. He added that Council could not at this time grant an increase on the basis that such legislation would be initiated and approved.

Police, during a meeting Saturday with councilmen, said the department will face a manpower loss unless increases are granted. However, there was no indication today that any officers have decided to leave the force.

Two Motorists Fined $150 For OMVI

The Circleville Municipal Court traffic docket listed two motorists who were found guilty of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants.

They were Clara Miller, 29, Mt. Sterling and Jerry Chavis, 45, Chillicothe. Both were fined $150 and costs and sentenced to three days in the county jail. In addition, Judge Sterling Lamb ordered their driving rights suspended for six months.

Other motorists on the court docket were:
Raymond G. McNeil, 47, Adelphi; Marvin Groves, 44, Bucyrus; both fined $10 and costs for exceeding the speed limit by 10 miles per hour.

Bertram Peterson, 41, Columbus; Junior Mullins, 26, Whittier, Calif.; $20 and costs for speeding 80 miles per hour in a 60 mile zone.

Helene Wiltshire, 61, Columbus; $22 bond forfeiture for speeding 73 miles per hour in a 60 mile zone.

John Francis, 23, Columbus; $50 bond forfeiture for speeding 95 miles per hour in a 60 mile zone.

Dallas Keaton, 38, Pedro; $10 and costs for following another car too closely.

It's Too Early To Judge

British See Sign Soviet May Aid Peace Move

MOSCOW (AP) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said today it is too early to judge whether there has been progress on world issues in his talks with Soviet leaders.

British informants said Tuesday they saw signs of Soviet willingness to support Wilson's call for keeping the Middle East peaceful and end the Viet Nam war.

The wisp of optimism came as Britain's disarmament minister, Lord Chalfont, made a surprise call on the North Vietnamese envoy, Lee Chang, in a bid to get peace talks started. There was no immediate indication of the outcome of this meeting.

Wilson met again today with

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and was scheduled to have talks with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev. His meeting with Brezhnev had not been on the program and was arranged during the night, British sources said.

Wilson also was to call today on former Soviet President Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The British prime minister said he had continued discussions of world problems with Kosygin during the intervals at a ballet performance Tuesday night in the Bolshoi Theater.

"I talked again on these issues with the premier then and that will lead to further exploration of them today," he said.

County School Heads Study Use of Federal Funds

The executive heads of the three county school districts met yesterday with superintendent of schools George D. McDowell in his office to discuss application of funds available under Title II of the Secondary and Elementary Education Act.

Teays Valley has $4,120.48 available, Westfall $2,902.90 and Logan Elm $1,881.02. The funds must be earmarked for school libraries with the highest priority going to elementary schools.

The application specifies that at least 50 per cent of the funds must go for elementary libraries. McDowell told the executive heads.

McDowell suggested the schools strengthen their supplemental reading programs with the funds.

The funds may be used for the purchasing of school library resources, textbooks and other printed and published teaching materials. All materials must be made available on an equitable basis to children and teachers in all public and private elementary and secondary schools.

Excluded are equipment, materials intended for religious instruction and materials consumed in use or those which cannot be expected to last for more than one year.

A proposed plan for a mobile film library was discarded by the executive heads since Teays Valley would not be able to contribute toward the joint project.

Benis Lutz said Teays Valley had only $2,800 available under the federal program. Jud Lanman reported Westfall had $40,000 remaining which had not been budgeted and John Henn noted Logan Elm still had approximately $14,000 to budget.

It was agreed that each executive head would make application for needs in the individual districts rather than make plans for a joint project this year.

Funds the county schools have received through the Elementary and Secondary Education Act must be spent by Aug. 31 of this year or returned to the government.

The money cannot be used for an existing school program. All county schools have instituted a remedial reading program with the funds.

News Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, is expected to be operated upon soon for a blocked urethra, an aide said today.

Lausche is in Bethesda Naval Hospital. The surgery originally was planned for today, but the senator has been running a fever from a cold and the operation was postponed.

DUNBAR, Pa. (AP)—An explosion ripped through a building at the Keystone Fireworks Manufacturing Co. plant in this southwestern Pennsylvania community today, killing at least four persons and possibly six.

Seven persons were rushed to a hospital for treatment.

Fire departments from five nearby communities were fighting a blaze which followed the blast.

Webb Watson, a plant employee, said some 50 persons were at work at the time.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, didn't lose his poise when introduced as a Democrat.

James F. Malone, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, introduced Shafer at the organization's annual dinner by calling him the choice of the "Democratic—I mean Republican executive committee."

Shafer drew a laugh when he started his talk to the heavily Republican group with, "Fellow Democrats..."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Joyce plans to start driving her maroon hardtop car to work every day. To Miss Taylor, 31, it's another step in her battle against a wheelchair.

Her legs paralyzed since 1947, she passed the test Tuesday to get her driver's license. She scored 89 out of 100 as she guided her special hand-controlled car over the test route.

Since she was injured in a shooting accident, Miss Taylor has graduated from Manual High School and the University of Louisville. She is employed as a draftsman by the Kentucky Highway Department.

Flu Outbreak in Space Is Considered Possible

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — An influenza outbreak in space?

It could happen. The flu bug, or any of its infectious virus friends for that matter, can strike an astronaut just as easily as it can the next man.

Astronauts could unknowingly carry the virus into space, a hostile environment where razor-sharp control of a spacecraft is essential to survival.

With this in mind, the space agency has awarded a $38,000 contract to the U.S. Public Health Service to determine the best approach to control and early diagnosis of viral infection in astronauts on a flight.

Doctors at the Manned Spacecraft Center agree that it is not a question of can an astronaut be infected by a virus while in space, but rather can it be prevented.

"It is possible we might start a flight with a man in the pre-clinical stage of some viral infection," Dr. Walter Kemmerer, the center's monitor on the virus control study, said in an interview. "We want to have techniques to enable us to prevent this from happening, and to detect that it is happening," he added.

"Also, we want to know how to prevent one astronaut from transmitting it to another inside the spacecraft."

The chances of a virus striking an astronaut will increase when flight crews get larger.

Just what would be done — whether the mission would be ended — will depend largely on the seriousness of the illness and how far the ship was from earth, Kemmerer said.

While in earth orbit, the spacemen could be rushed home for medical treatment in a relatively short period of time, but on excursions of several weeks or months to other planets, they would be forced to be their own doctors, while receiving instructions from medical men monitoring flight from earth.

No American astronaut has reported even so much as a slight cold in space.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, command pilot of the 14-day flight of Gemini 7, caused some moments of concern last December when he sneezed while in orbit. It was called by some "the sneeze heard around the world."

Doctors monitoring the medical data beamed back to earth from Gemini 7 quickly checked Borman's condition, and detected no sign of impending illness.

Kemmerer said that the virus control contract calls for a final report within a year.

Nam, but not negotiate a surrender.

In his statement, McNamara echoed the Viet Nam policies expressed recently by President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

He emphasized the administration's effort to bring about negotiations for peace and praised the military help being given in South Viet Nam by Australia, New Zealand and South Korea.

At another point in his statement, McNamara discussed the Sino-Soviet rift and said:

"The contest between the two Communist powers opens up new dangers and new opportunities for the free world."

McNamara said the Chinese have rejected Soviet overtures for better relations and united action in support of the North Vietnamese government. Their refusal has caused the loss of some support among the "neutral" Communists, he said, and led even to a reluctance by North Viet Nam and North Korea to echo Peking's propaganda attacks on Moscow.

But because Moscow's strategy is to refute Peking's charges of Russian "connivance with U.S. imperialism," McNamara said, "we must continue to expect a harsh anti-American tone in Soviet policy pronouncements."

McNamara said there is growing recognition in the free world that the Viet Nam war is the result of Communist aggression and "is controlled from Hanoi, urged on by Peking." The American effort to seek negotiation is widely supported by non-Communist nations, he said, and added:

"However, there is widespread concern lest the war widen, particularly as a result of Chinese intervention, and a tendency to let the U.S. bear the main burden for a war that many feel is remote."

Ross Names 3 to Airport Committee

Ross County Commissioners named three persons Monday to represent their county on a joint Pickaway-Ross County Airport Committee.

Named as Ross representatives were Dr. Robert E. Swank, Paul Conaway and Stuart E. Withers.

They will serve with the three-man committee from Pickaway County: Allan Bray, manager of the Du Pont Plant here; John H. Dunlap, Williamsport; and Donald Goodchild, construction contractor.

Members of the joint committee are to make reports at regular intervals to commissioners of their respective counties.

PICKAWAY members will report to the Community Action Committee, recently created by the county commissioners, and the Ross County men will report to the county's airport committee.

Conaway is president of Brewer & Brewer Sons Inc. and has had no previous experience on airport committees. Dr. Swank and Withers have served on the Chillicothe Area Chamber of Commerce airport committees.

Wayward Guidelines

President Johnson's noninflationary economic guidelines are in hot water. The 3.2 per cent limit on wage increases has been more breached than honored in virtually all important labor contracts.

The theory behind the limit is that an increase of 3.2 per cent in wages can be instituted without any increase in prices, since industrial productivity has been rising at about 3.2 per cent annually. One balances out the other, and theoretically inflation is held in check.

It has not worked that way in practice, principally because the one-sided enforcement of guidelines — industry, yes; labor, no — has allowed labor costs to rise well beyond the guidelines.

Now, a further problem is appearing. Current economic conditions are cutting seriously into the productivity of U. S. manufacturing industry. This is particularly evident in the cost of labor per unit of production, which had been held fairly constant in recent years.

The shortage of skilled labor, for example, has forced the employment of workers who are inadequately trained or otherwise less qualified. In some cases, plant capacity is left idle because workers are not available to operate it.

The same situation is true of plants and equipment. As demand increases for products, older and less efficient units are called back into production. Productivity suffers in such instances.

Labor costs are further increased by the significant increase in fringe benefits, plus the rise in social security taxes which went into effect on Jan. 1.

The new situation is clearly reflected in a comparison of sales and payrolls. Whereas a year ago sales increased faster than payrolls, the reverse is now true. In the first quarter of 1965, manufacturers' sales rose by 3.7 per cent, and payrolls increased 3.3 per cent. In the last quarter, however, sales were up only 1.7 per cent, but payrolls rose by 2.1 per cent.

At the moment, there is little relief in sight. In fact, the situation is likely to continue, with additional burdens being imposed by the rise in the cost of raw materials and the increase in depreciation rates due to heavy plant construction programs of recent months.

While the President periodically restates his devotion to the guidelines for noninflationary pay increases, economic conditions seem to have outrun the policy. What is likely to happen is that the guidelines will continue to be used as levers for higher pay and as suppressors of balancing price increases.

Korean Threat

Frequently, in discussions of the possible recriminations by Red China if the United States were to strive more aggressively to throw the Chinese and their North Viet Nam stooges out of South Viet Nam, it is mentioned that Red China just might reopen the Korean War if it got the impression the United States meant business in Southeast Asia.

Of course, the defeatists hold up the supposedly awesome power of Red Chinese masses as a sort of bogey man to keep the U. S. from accomplishing an honorable objective. Senators and others who seem more interested in backing away from the dedicated aggressiveness of the communist world than in facing it may make some noise and manage to create some diversion in the land, but in the end it is not they who will make the policy.

But in using a possible Chinese invasion of South Korea as a reason for getting out of Viet Nam, the appeasers overlook the very nature of the enemy. Red China has never stopped fighting the Korean War.

Along the entire 2½-mile-wide barrier which is supposed to be the demilitarized zone separating communist North Korea from free South Korea, Chinese and North Korean patrols haarrass American and South Korean forces in a war of nerves they candidly admit is geared to getting Americans out of Viet Nam.

More than 3,000 communist violations of the truce agreement have been logged by U. S. forces in the 12½ years since the Korean armistice was signed. Most of the violations involve smuggling agents across the zone and terrorist attacks on American guards and observation posts. American soldiers have died as a result of this harassment.

The situation in Korea is as it is in Viet Nam. The communists, goaded, led and largely supplied by Red China, are the aggressive force. The million men stationed along both sides of the 151-mile-long truce line could be thrown into all-out warfare once again whenever the war lords of the north so decided.

Red China can use any pretext it chooses to expand the Viet Nam War into Korea or any other part of the Asian continent.

The United States must be resolutely prepared for a direct confrontation. To give Red China an indication of weakness in U. S. desire for a free Asia is to invite far more serious adventures by Mao Tse-tung.

Particularly at this time of the year, everything seems dull and repetitious. We need change — change of any kind.

For example, life would be so much more interesting if —

Every week had two paydays and no Mondays.

Bing Crosby put his toupee on backward.

Ho Chi Minh would quit balking and start talking.

My laundry would quit putting starch in my shirt collars.

Helen Hayes acted more often.

Somebody taught Charles de Gaulle how to use a hula hoop.

Lyndon Johnson would barbecue a whale on the White House lawn.

That first robin would hurry up and get here.

Yep, it would also help brighten our winter doldrums if —

Congress would wipe out the teen-age problem by making it illegal for anyone to be between 12 and 30 years old.

A television network developed a program that no other network could copy.

Wives liked home cooking more.

The people who say they simply don't understand what we are doing in Viet Nam would go there and find out.

Oh, yes, it would help jolt us all out of our monotonous rut if —

A bus driver would say, "Everybody move to the back of the bus," and then get up and lead the way.

Some fashion magazine put a picture of a fat model on its cover — just once.

Some genius invented a non-caloric food that had a real flavor.

Employers made after-lunch naps mandatory for their employees.

BUFORD RAY, former Green Bay Packer, and now one of the football coaches at Vanderbilt, told Bish Thompson, of the Evansville Press, the story of one of his 280-pound

guards who was not exactly a mental phenomenon. One night the well-meaning bruiser came home nursing a black eye and a swollen lip. His explanation: "I just ran into Mike Maloney, the tavern keeper, and made some crack about the Pope. So he took a couple of pokes at me."

"For Pete's sake," exploded Coach Ray, "didn't you realize that Mike Maloney is a Catholic?"

"Yeah, sure, Coach," nodded his brilliant guard, "but I didn't know the Pope was!"

In 1904, the first link of New York City's now far-flung subway system, began operations. It ran from Brooklyn Bridge to 145 Street and Broadway, on a schedule twenty minutes faster than a 1966 racing car can make the trip today. It's not the double-parkers that cause the delays now. It's the triple-parkers. Mayor Lindsay: HELP!

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

How are pregnancy tests performed? Are they always reliable?

There are many different ways by which early pregnancy can be determined. Animal tests using frogs and rabbits depend on the increase of a special kind of hormone in the urine of the patient being tested. This particular type of test may not be very reliable in the very early days of suspected pregnancy.

There now is a test that uses a hormone taken by mouth by the woman who is being studied. This oral hormone test has proved to be highly reliable even during the very early stages of pregnancy. The reliability seems to be greater than the animal test.

The fact that this test determines pregnancy earlier and does not need laboratory animals seems to point to its greater advantages.

Dr. Harold Feldman at the Millard Fillmore Hospital in Buffalo, New York, has been enthusiastic about the results he has obtained with this new and highly successful test.

Can psychological problems cause severe backaches? Emotional disturbances can cause or make worse virtually every painful condition of the body. When there is emotional stress all pain seems to be tolerated less.

The body and mind are intimately related in every phase of health and disease. One does not exist without the other. Physicians are particularly careful to be sure that a physical disturbance is not overlooked because a patient seems to be tense, worried or emotionally upset.

Similarly, physicians recognize how deeply the emotions can affect a physical disturbance.

This interplay is the real basis for the psychosomatic understanding of all disease.

It is for this reason that the total treatment of the total patient depends on a complete understanding of the physical and the emotional aspects of backache.

How then do the emotions actually produce a pain in the back? An emotionally tense person produces tensions and spasms of the muscles of the neck and back. This interferes with the blood supply to the muscles, all leading to incorrect posture and painful back.

Does weather cause sinus infections?

Weather itself cannot produce infection. Infections are caused only by bacteria, viruses and molds. However, weather can be a factor in the comfort or distress of people who suffer from sinus infection.

Sufferers of sinusitis consistently seem to feel more comfortable in temperate, warm climates. Moving to these climates without first having tried it can be a costly and disappointing mistake.

Trichinosis is a preventable disease, preventable by the thorough cooking of all pork and pork products.

Uncanny Japanese

By John Chamberlain

In the Nineteenth Century, alone among Asiatic nations, Japan studied the West. Embassies were sent from Tokyo to London to interview the famous British sociologist Herbert Spencer on matters of political organization; Japanese business leaders journeyed to New England to study the new machine technologies of spinning and weaving. All of this created a tremendous prosperity. Unfortunately, however, the Japanese also studied the progress of western imperialism, and, in seeking to imitate it, they eventually bit off more than they could chew. The result was a defeat and a political receivership under Douglas MacArthur.

The first attempt to become the great power of the Far East having failed because of a mistaken turn, Japan has become more cautious. But the Japanese ability to follow western developments, and to imitate them closely when they promise new advances, is just as keen as ever. If you don't believe it, you should follow the monthly reports issued by the Fuji Bank of Tokyo.

What impresses me about some of the recent Fuji Bank releases is the way the Japan of 1966 is following U.S. developments of 1965. It is really quite uncanny. The Japanese have been Keynesians in economics for some time now; they believe in stimulating the economy through State spending on public works such as sanitation facilities, roads, and government-assisted housing. The Japanese budget for the first half of fiscal 1966, which begins April 1, allots $2.4 billion for public works. The Housing Loan Corporation and the Japan Housing Corporation will receive an increase of some fifty per cent over fiscal 1965. But this, after all, is the old Keynesianism. It works for the short run, but at the expense of the more creative elements of society which are deprived of money they would normally be investing in the so-called "ladder industries" of the future. Last year in the U.S., our Keynesians took a leaf out of the book of the old capitalism, and came up with the proposition that if more money were left in private hands, the economy would benefit — and out of a greater Gross National Product a bigger sum total of taxes might be collected even at the lower tax rate.

The Keynesians had the effrontery to call this neo-Keynesianism. It might just as well have been called neo-classicism. But, since words don't matter, we can let that pass. The point is that the theory worked. With lower income and corporate taxes, the U. S. prospered mightily in 1965. And with a big gross tax take the huge Johnson budget was not disastrously out of balance. The neo-Keynesian theory of tax cuts might have worked to perfection within a balanced budget if there had been enough recalculants in Congress to force a cut — back in agricultural spending and in some of our more ridiculous foreign aid items.

The truly interesting thing about the Japanese is that they have been right on the ball in noticing the difference between the old Keynesianism and the new as practiced by the U. S. of 1965. Their fiscal draft budget for 1966 proposes a cut in national taxes by 853 million — an incentive toward business recovery. The level of tax-exempt income will be raised. The progressive income tax rate for the middle-income sector, reducing corporate tax rates by 2 per cent, and reducing the commodity tax. Distribution of the tax — relief amount will be 50 per cent for income tax, 38 per cent for corporate tax, and 14 per cent for other categories.

If things work out as the Japanese neo-Keynesians anticipate, the Japan of 1966 will become an Oriental version of the U. S. of 1965. But there will be a few differences. In the first place, the Japanese with a favorable trade balance, have no gold drain. And in the second place, the Tokyo military budget is negligible. The favorable trade balance was achieved by pushing exports as only the Japanese know how to push them.

The argument is made that the Vietnamese War compels the U. S. to give up on its 1965 experiment in prosperity through tax cutting. But how good is the argument? Doesn't full employment justify cuts in poverty programming? And isn't much of our "foreign aid" a matter of reflex habit? With a modicum of Japanese common sense, our 1965 could be continued into 1966.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — Auto makers talk of record sales ahead but their output and sales so far this year are trailing 1965.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

A group of 30 local builders and contractors met at the Elks Lodge for dinner and the initial meeting of a training program sponsored by Basic Construction Materials.

Allen Grossman, Route 2, Orient, earned first place in Pickaway County in a "points for pounds" premier pig growing contest at the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

Laurelville EUB Church members planned to sponsor a Jitney Supper and Bazaar in the Community Hall.

TEN YEARS AGO

Ellisa Evans celebrated her eighth birthday at a party given by her mother, Mrs. Ellis Evans and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Fisher, Jackson Twp.

Gene D. Stonerok of Williamsport was named the 1956 Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy winner.

Kingston Post No. 291, American Legion, was sponsoring a fish supper.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Virgil Heskett of Ashland and Miss Abdel Harvey of Columbus were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Heskett.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pierce of Chicago, Ill., left for their home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McCoard, E. High St.

Fifty war veterans filled out the American Legion National Defense questionnaire at the Courthouse.

Special conditions make this less contradictory than it sounds. But how quickly cars will be moving off production lines and out of dealers showrooms a month from now will be watched closely.

Autos are popularly considered a key indicator of the health of the economy. If auto plants are busy and motorists are buying freely, most Americans think all's well.

Output so far this year is about 85,000 cars behind the same date in 1965. This was expected. January and February of last year saw record production and sales while the industry and its customers were catching up after the shortages caused by strikes in the fall of 1964.

The question now is: How will the auto industry be faring this spring? Comparison with a year ago will then be more normal. The spring-inspired urge to get out on the road should be working its seasonal magic.

But some people have less take-home pay now than a year ago. Higher social security taxes are biting both into their pay checks and their employer's cash flow.

Since most people buy a new car on the monthly payment plan, the question is: Will they be feeling the pinch of keeping up their other monthly payments out of paychecks smaller than a year ago?

There is also the question of car prices. Added safety devices in the 1966 models tend to make for higher total costs. Rising interest rates on borrowed money also may take a toll.

Sales in the early weeks after the 1966 models were introduced were pleasing for most auto makers. And that is why they shrug off the comparison just now of sales with a year ago when conditions were special.

The early sales returns lead some auto executives to predict that 1966 will see a sizable rise in sales over 1965.

Complicating predictions, in addition to higher social security taxes and the proposed rescinding of a small cut in excise taxes on autos, is just how public psychology may swing if the Viet Nam war grows, or if its impact becomes more apparent to Americans.

All consumer goods, not just autos, could be affected. If the public decides that prices in general are going to rise, along with interest rates, it might plod for getting up stiffer monthly payments now and buy freely.

The earth is spinning more slowly and the days are growing longer, declares a Soviet scientist, Vladimir Kotelnikov. Don't know about the rest of the week but the day before payday seems to drag more slowly each year.

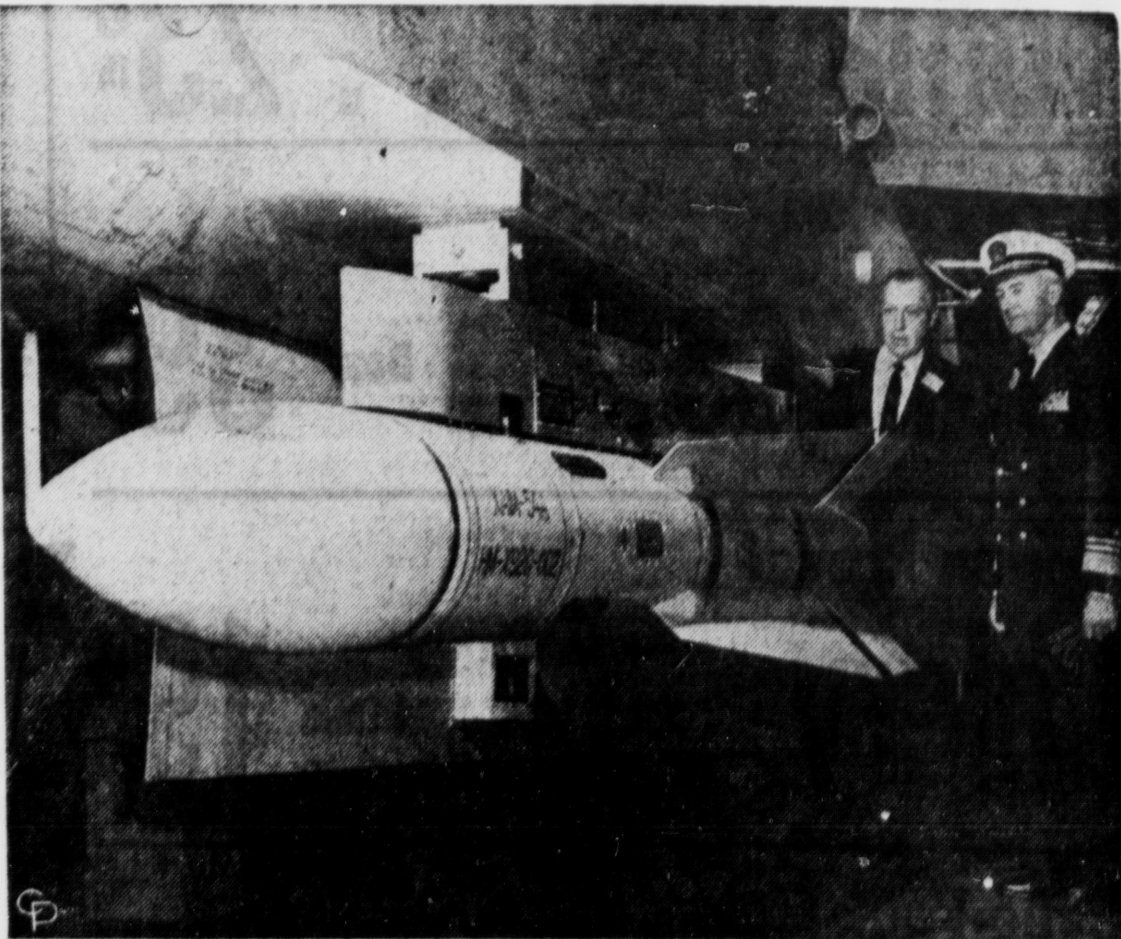

From March, 1963, to October, 1964, says Kotelnikov, the average day lengthened by about 1-1,000th of a second. And we never even noticed it!

Hope Comrade K. is right about the days getting longer. That would mean, of course, we're growing older more slowly.

An Isle of Wight, England, dairyman reported that someone had filled the radiator of his truck with milk. Mighty white of the prankster — even if it was a messy sort of joke.

Colorado State U. students claim the 13-foot snowman they built is a world record. It may not mean much scholastically, but you must admit it was a big achievement.

Norway, which is experiencing the longest and coldest winter in a century or so, may have to add one more word to its national slogan, so it will read: "The Land of the Midnight Sun — Sometimes."

AIR-TO-AIR PHOENIX—This first photo of the new air-to-air Phoenix missile shows it mounted on the launcher rail of an A3A Navy jet at Hughes Aircraft in Culver City, Calif. Looking it over are Meade A. Lavesay of Hughes and Vice Adm. Ignatius J. Galantin. The Phoenix' role will be to maintain air superiority over distant objectives such as beachhead landings, and to provide protection for warships. This is a test model.

Wayward Guidelines

President Johnson's noninflationary economic guidelines are in hot water. The 3.2 per cent limit on wage increases has been more breached than honored in virtually all important labor contracts.

The theory behind the limit is that an increase of 3.2 per cent in wages can be instituted without any increase in prices, since industrial productivity has been rising at about 3.2 per cent annually. One balances out the other, and theoretically inflation is held in check.

It has not worked that way in practice, principally because the one-sided enforcement of guidelines — industry, yes; labor, no — has allowed labor costs to rise well beyond the guidelines.

Now, a further problem is appearing. Current economic conditions are cutting seriously into the productivity of U. S. manufacturing industry. This is particularly evident in the cost of labor per unit of production, which had been held fairly constant in recent years.

The shortage of skilled labor, for example, has forced the employment of workers who are inadequately trained or otherwise less qualified. In some cases, plant capacity is left idle because workers are not available to operate it.

The same situation is true of plants and equipment. As demand increases for products, older and less efficient units are called back into production. Productivity suffers in such instances.

Labor costs are further increased by the significant increase in fringe benefits, plus the rise in social security taxes which went into effect on Jan. 1.

The new situation is clearly reflected in a comparison of sales and payrolls. Whereas a year ago sales increased faster than payrolls, the reverse is now true. In the first quarter of 1965, manufacturers' sales rose by 3.7 per cent, and payrolls increased 3.3 per cent. In the last quarter, however, sales were up only 1.7 per cent, but payrolls rose by 2.1 per cent.

At the moment, there is little relief in sight. In fact, the situation is likely to continue, with additional burdens being imposed by the rise in the cost of raw materials and the increase in depreciation rates due to heavy plant construction programs of recent months.

While the President periodically restates his devotion to the guidelines for noninflationary pay increases, economic conditions seem to have outrun the policy. What is likely to happen is that the guidelines will continue to be used as levers for higher pay and as suppressors of balancing price increases.

Korean Threat

Frequently, in discussions of the possible recriminations by Red China if the United States were to strive more aggressively to throw the Chinese and their North Viet Nam stooges out of South Viet Nam, it is mentioned that Red China just might reopen the Korean War if it got the impression the United States meant business in Southeast Asia.

Of course, the defeatists hold up the supposedly awesome power of Red Chinese masses as a sort of bogey man to keep the U. S. from accomplishing an honorable objective. Senators and others who seem more interested in backing away from the dedicated aggressiveness of the communist world than in facing it may make some noise and manage to create some diversion in the land, but in the end it is not they who will make the policy.

But in using a possible Chinese invasion of South Korea as a reason for getting out of Viet Nam, the appeasers overlook the very nature of the enemy. Red China has never stopped fighting the Korean War.

Along the entire 2½-mile-wide barrier which is supposed to be the demilitarized zone separating communist North Korea from free South Korea, Chinese and North Korean patrols haarrass American and South Korean forces in a war of nerves they candidly admit is geared to getting Americans out of Viet Nam.

More than 3,000 communist violations of the truce agreement have been logged by U. S. forces in the 12½ years since the Korean armistice was signed. Most of the violations involve smuggling agents across the zone and terrorist attacks on American guards and observation posts. American soldiers have died as a result of this harassment.

The situation in Korea is as it is in Viet Nam. The communists, goaded, led and largely supplied by Red China, are the aggressive force. The million men stationed along both sides of the 151-mile-long truce line could be thrown into all-out warfare once again whenever the war lords of the north so decided.

Red China can use any pretext it chooses to expand the Viet Nam War into Korea or any other part of the Asian continent.

The United States must be resolutely prepared for a direct confrontation. To give Red China an indication of weakness in U. S. desire for a free Asia is to invite far more serious adventures by Mao Tse-tung.

Particularly at this time of the year, everything seems dull and repetitious. We need change — change of any kind.

For example, life would be so much more interesting if —
Every week had two paydays and no Mondays.

Bing Crosby put his toupee on backward.
Ho Chi Minh would quit balking and start talking.

My laundry would quit putting starch in my shirt collars.
Helen Hayes acted more often.

Somebody taught Charles de Gaulle how to use a hula hoop.
Lyndon Johnson would barbecue a whale on the White House lawn.

That first robin would hurry up and get here.
Yep, it would also help brighten our winter doldrums if —

Congress would wipe out the teen-age problem by making it illegal for anyone to be between 12 and 20 years old.

A television network developed a program that no other network could copy.

Wives liked home cooking more.

The people who say they simply don't understand what we are doing in Viet Nam would go there and find out.

Oh, yes, it would help jolt us all out of our monotonous rut if —
A bus driver would say, "Everybody move to the back of the bus," and then get up and lead the way.

Some fashion magazine put a picture of a fat model on its cover — just once.

Some genius invented a non-caloric food that had a real flavor.

Employers made after-lunch naps mandatory for their employees.

BUFORD RAY, former Green Bay Packer, and now one of the football coaches at Vanderbilt, told Bish Thompson, of the Evansville Press, the story of one of his 280-pound

guards who was not exactly a mental phenomenon. One night the well-meaning bruiser came home nursing a black eye and a swollen lip. His explanation: "I just ran into Mike Maloney, the tavern keeper, and made some crack about the Pope. So he took a couple of pokes at me."

"For Pete's sake," exploded Coach Ray, "didn't you realize that Mike Maloney is a Catholic?"
"Yeah, sure, Coach," nodded his brilliant guard, "but I didn't know the Pope was!"

In 1904, the first link of New York City's now far-flung subway system, began operations. It ran from Brooklyn Bridge to 145 Street and Broadway, on a schedule twenty minutes faster than a 1966 racing car can make the trip today. It's not the double-parkers that cause the delays now. It's the triple-parkers. Mayor Lindsay: HELP!

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

How are pregnancy tests performed? Are they always reliable?

There are many different ways by which early pregnancy can be determined. Animal tests using frogs and rabbits depend on the increase of a special kind of hormone in the urine of the patient being tested. This particular type of test may not be very reliable in the very early days of suspected pregnancy.

There now is a test that uses a hormone taken by mouth by the woman who is being studied. This oral hormone test has proved to be highly reliable even during the very early stages of pregnancy. The reliability seems to be greater than the animal test.

The fact that this test determines pregnancy earlier and does not need laboratory animals seems to point to its greater advantages.

Dr. Harold Feldman at the Millard Fillmore Hospital in Buffalo, New York, has been enthusiastic about the results he has obtained with this new and highly successful test.

Can psychological problems cause severe backaches? Emotional disturbances can cause or make worse virtually every painful condition of the body. When there is emotional stress all pain seems to be tolerated less.

The body and mind are intimately related in every phase of health and disease. One does not exist without the other. Physicians are particularly careful to be sure that a physical disturbance is not overlooked because a patient seems to be tense, worried or emotionally upset.

Similarly, physicians recognize how deeply the emotions can affect a physical disturbance.

This interplay is the real basis for the psychosomatic understanding of all disease.

It is for this reason that the total treatment of the total patient depends on a complete understanding of the physical and the emotional aspects of backache.

How then do the emotions actually produce a pain in the back? An emotionally tense person produces tensions and spasms of the muscles of the neck and back. This interferes with the blood supply to the muscles, all leading to incorrect posture and painful back.

Does weather cause sinus infections?

Weather itself cannot produce infection. Infections are caused only by bacteria, viruses and molds. However, weather can be a factor in the comfort or distress of people who suffer from sinus infection.

Sufferers of sinusitis consistently seem to feel more comfortable in temperate, warm climates. Moving to these climates without first having tried it can be a costly and disappointing mistake.

Trichinosis is a preventable disease, preventable by the thorough cooking of all pork and pork products.

Uncanny Japanese

By John Chamberlain

In the Nineteenth Century, alone among Asiatic nations, Japan studied the West. Emisaries were sent from Tokyo to London to interview the famous British sociologist Herbert Spencer on matters of political organization; Japanese business leaders journeyed to New England to study the new machine technologies of spinning and weaving. All of this created a tremendous prosperity. Unfortunately, however, the Japanese also studied the progress of western imperialism, and, in seeking to imitate it, they eventually bit off more than they could chew. The result was a defeat and a political receivership under Douglas MacArthur.

The first attempt to become the great power of the Far East having failed because of a mistaken turn, Japan has become more cautious. But the Japanese ability to follow western developments, and to imitate them closely when they promise new advances, is just as keen as ever. If you don't believe it, you should follow the monthly reports issued by the Fuji Bank of Tokyo.

What impresses me about some of the recent Fuji Bank releases is the way the Japan of 1966 is following U.S. developments of 1965. It is really quite uncanny. The Japanese have been Keynesians in economics for some time now; they believe in stimulating the economy through State spending on public works such as sanitation facilities, roads, and government-assisted housing. The Japanese budget for the first half of fiscal 1966, which begins April 1, allots $2.4 billion for public works. The Housing Loan Corporation and the Japan Housing Corporation will receive an increase of some fifty per cent over fiscal 1965.

But this, after all, is the old Keynesianism. It works for the short run, but at the expense of the more creative elements of society which are deprived of money they would normally be investing in the so-called "ladder industries" of the future. Last year in the U.S., our Keynesians took a leaf out of the book of the old capitalism, and came up with the proposition that if more money were left in private hands, the economy would benefit — and out of a greater Gross National Product a bigger sum total of taxes might be collected even at the lower tax rate.

The Keynesians had the effrontery to call this neo-Keynesianism. It might just as well have been called neo-classicism. But, since words don't matter, we can let that pass. The point is that the theory worked. With lower income and corporate taxes, the U. S. prospered mightily in 1965. And with a big gross tax take the huge Johnson budget was not disastrously out of balance. The neo-Keynesian theory of tax cuts might have worked to perfection within a balanced budget if there had been enough recalcitrants in Congress to force a cut — back in agricultural spending and in some of our more ridiculous foreign aid items.

The truly interesting thing about the Japanese is that they have been right on the ball in noticing the difference between the old Keynesianism and the new as practiced by the U. S. of 1965. Their fiscal draft budget for 1966 proposes a cut in national taxes by 853 million as an incentive toward business recovery. The level of tax-exempt income will be raised. The incentives including "relaxing the progressive income tax rate for the middle-income sector, reducing corporate tax rates by 2 per cent, and reducing the commodity tax. Distribution of the tax-relief amount will be 50 per cent for income tax, 38 per cent for corporate tax and 14 per cent for other categories."

If things work out as the Japanese neo-Keynesians anticipate, the Japan of 1966 will become an Oriental version of the U. S. of 1965. But there will be a few differences. In the first place, the Japanese with a favorable trade balance, have no gold drain. And in the second place, the Tokyo military budget is negligible. The favorable trade balance was achieved by pushing exports as only the Japanese know how to push them.

The argument is made that the Vietnamese War compels the U. S. to give up on its 1965 experiment in prosperity through tax cutting. But how good is the argument? Doesn't full employment justify cuts in poverty programming? And isn't much of our "foreign aid" a matter of reflex habit? With a modicum of Japanese common sense, our 1965 could be continued into 1966.

Plant Boss At Eshelman Mill Retires

LESLIE C. RIHL

Leslie C. Rihl, 332 E. Union St., will retire Friday as plant superintendent for John W. Eshelman & Sons, local feed manufacturers.

Rihl has been an employee of Eshelman & Sons since April 16, 1930. He worked on construction of the local mill and his first job in the plant was oiling machinery.

The veteran employee helped load the first carload of feed made in the Circleville plant. He was transferred to the mixer room and in July of 1936 was named to the position of superintendent.

Prior to accepting a post with the Eshelman firm, Rihl worked for the Scioto Valley Railway & Power Co. for 14 years. The major portion of this time was spent as a conductor on the interurban cars.

D. J. Carpenter, manager of the local mill, announced Rihl could have taken his retirement a year ago, but remained on the job at the request of the company. L. W. Hoffman, who has been assistant superintendent, will replace the veteran superintendent.

Business Briefs

A new computer center linking the company's nationwide network of plants, offices and sales branches is being built in Toledo by Owens-Illinois, Inc., to enable it to make the most efficient use of the latest developments — as well as future ones — in the fast-growing computer field, the company has announced.

The new center will occupy 18,500 square feet of a five-acre site between the Owens-Illinois Technical Center and the University of Toledo Campus. It is being constructed by the Henry J. Spieker Co. of Toledo. "The new data processing center will combine and replace a general office computer center now located in the Owens-Illinois Building, and a computer operation in the Libbey glass tableware plant here," William J. Stewart, Owens-Illinois vice president for corporate planning said.

Zambians Pay 50 Cents a Gallon For Gasoline which Costs $3.50

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Cars and taxis bustle through Lusaka's streets and trucks bucket along dusty, upcountry Zambian roads—all of them on gasoline costing Zambians 50 cents a gallon.

Getting the gas into the country by massive international airlift is costing the British, U.S. and Canadian governments perhaps $3.50 a gallon.

The airlift's first flights winged barrels of oil to Lusaka two months ago when this landlocked nation's copper economy was threatened by a Rhodesian refusal to let oil pass its border. That was a retaliation by Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith against worldwide embargoes put on his "rebel" government.

Since then the oil lift has snowballed. Road, rail and river routes supplement the nonstop "pipeline in the sky." Eight nations — Zambia itself, Britain, the United States, Canada, the Congo, Tanzania, Malawi and Kenya — are involved.

Zambia's monthly needs of 3.9 million gallons are being met and there is enough left for it to stockpile 1.6 million gallons a month.

The airlift now involved 20 planes. Six Britannias of the British Royal Air Force fly here from Nairobi, Kenya. Eight British civilian planes fetch oil from Tanzania's capital of Dar es Salaam.

From Leopoldville, Congo, four Canadian air force Hercules aircraft fly to Lusaka, carrying drums of high-octane gasoline — "a major risk to carry, particularly in this area which is heavily subject to electrical storms," a Canadian official commented. "But nobody seems to mind."

Two Boeing 707s chartered by the U.S. Agency for International Development also fly from Leopoldville, but carry oil only as far as Elizabethville near the Zambia-Congo border. Zambian runways are too short for the Boeings.

From Elisabethville the oil

brought by the 707s — each carrying 144 barrels of 55 gallons each — reaches Lusaka by land route.

One 707 was chartered from Pan American World Airways. The other is a Trans World Airlines plane — the one that carried Pope Paul VI to Rome after his U.S. visit.

A British High Commission spokesman has put Britain's costs at $2.8 million a month. Chartering the Boeings costs

AID $7,500 per plane trip. The two jets total six trips a day. Each U.S. airline is estimated to have received more than half a million dollars.

Canadian sources in the Congo estimate their government pays $2,300 a day for Hercules fuel alone. Other costs are not known, except that each Canadian airman gets $18 a day for meals, plus room rent and "other reasonable expenses."

The price of the oil itself — it comes from a pool set up by Mobil Oil, Texaco, Shell and the Congolese Petrocongo and Socopol companies — is paid for by Zambia.

How long the airlift will have to continue is undecided. The Canadians recently pledged to extend their effort up to April 30, and it seems likely the U.S.-chartered flights will keep going as long.

7 Kids of Family Get Tonsillectomies

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Tuesday was tonsillectomy day at Erlanger Hospital for the children of Mr. and Mrs. James Putnam — all seven of them.

One of the hospital's operating rooms was tied up for seven hours as the children, from Mary, 5, to Mike, 18, trooped through to have their tonsils and adenoids removed.

"The boss," said Putnam in reference to his wife, "said all the kids would have their tonsils and adenoids out at once." "It will save trips to the hospital," she explained.

Q. Is it possible for a person to become infected with pinworm through contact with a dog? The veterinarian said dogs are not carriers of pinworm.

A. The veterinarian was correct. House pets, including the dog, have been shown to play no role in the spread of this infection. The human is the sole natural host of the parasite. Transmission of the disease is from person to person.

CHERRY SEEDS

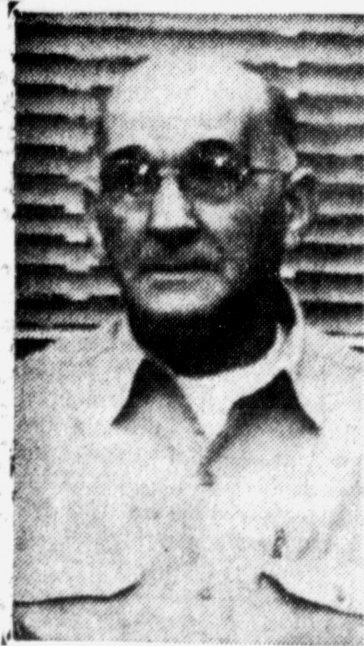

Q. Are cherry seeds poisonous? I have heard they are but children seem to swallow them without trouble.

A. Cherry seeds contain a substance which, with water, produces a poison. However, the seeds must be crushed to produce this reaction. It is said that 12 oz. of cherry seeds contain enough prussic acid to give symptoms of poisoning but it is not likely that so large an amount could be eaten.

Plant Boss At Eshelman Mill Retires

LESLIE C. RIHL

Leslie C. Rihl, 332 E. Union St., will retire Friday as plant superintendent for John W. Eshelman & Sons, local feed manufacturers.

Rihl has been an employee of Eshelman & Sons since April 16, 1930. He worked on construction of the local mill and his first job in the plant was oiling machinery.

The veteran employee helped load the first carload of feed made in the Circleville plant. He was transferred to the mixer room and in July of 1936 was named to the position of superintendent.

Prior to accepting a post with the Eshelman firm, Rihl worked for the Scioto Valley Railway & Power Co. for 14 years. The major portion of this time was spent as a conductor on the interurban cars. D. J. Carpenter, manager of the local mill, announced Rihl could have taken his retirement a year ago, but remained on the job at the request of the company. L. W. Hoffman, who has been assistant superintendent, will replace the veteran superintendent.

Business Briefs

A new computer center linking the company's nationwide network of plants, offices and sales branches is being built in Toledo by Owens-Illinois, Inc., to enable it to make the most efficient use of the latest developments — as well as future ones — in the fast-growing computer field, the company has announced.

The new center will occupy 18,500 square-feet of a five-acre site between the Owens-Illinois Technical Center and the University of Toledo Campus. It is being constructed by the Henry J. Spieker Co. of Toledo. "The new data processing center will combine and replace a general office computer center now located in the Owens-Illinois Building, and a computer operation in the Libbey glass tableware plant here," William J. Stewart, Owens-Illinois vice president for corporate planning said.

Zambians Pay 50 Cents a Gallon For Gasoline which Costs $3.50

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Cars and taxis bustle through Lusaka's streets and trucks bucket along dusty, upcountry Zambian roads—all of them on gasoline costing Zambians 50 cents a gallon.

Getting the gas into the country by massive international airlift is costing the British, U.S. and Canadian governments perhaps $3.50 a gallon.

The airlift's first flights winged barrels of oil to Lusaka two months ago when this landlocked nation's copper economy was threatened by a Rhodesian refusal to let oil pass its border. That was a retaliation by Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith against worldwide embargoes put on his "rebel" government.

Since then the oil lift has snowballed. Road, rail and river routes supplement the nonstop "pipeline in the sky." Eight nations — Zambia itself, Britain, the United States, Canada, the Congo, Tanzania, Malawi and Kenya — are involved.

Zambia's monthly needs of 3.9 million gallons are being met and there is enough left for it to stockpile 1.6 million gallons a month.

The airlift now involved 20 planes.

Six Britannias of the British Royal Air Force fly here from Nairobi, Kenya. Eight British civilian planes fetch oil from Tanzania's capital of Dar es Salaam.

From Leopoldville, Congo, four Canadian air force Hercules aircraft fly to Lusaka, carrying drums of high-octane gasoline — "a major risk to carry, particularly in this area which is heavily subject to electrical storms," a Canadian officer commented. "But nobody seems to mind."

Two Boeing 707s chartered by the U.S. Agency for International Development also fly from Leopoldville, but carry oil only as far as Elizabethville near the Zambia-Congo border. Zambian runways are too short for the Boeings.

From Elisabethville the oil

brought by the 707s — each carrying 144 barrels of 55 gallons each — reaches Lusaka by land route.

One 707 was chartered from Pan American World Airways. The other is a Trans World Airlines plane — the one that carried Pope Paul VI to Rome after his U.S. visit.

A British High Commission spokesman has put Britain's costs at $2.8 million a month. Chartering the Boeings costs

AID $7,500 per plane trip. The two jets total six trips a day. Each U.S. airline is estimated to have received more than half a million dollars.

Canadian sources in the Congolese capital estimate their government pays $2,300 a day for Hercules fuel alone. Other costs are not known, except that each Canadian airman gets $18 a day for meals, plus room rent and "other reasonable expenses."

The price of the oil itself — it comes from a pool set up by Mobil Oil, Texaco, Shell and the Congolese Petrocongo and Socopol companies — is paid for by Zambia.

How long the airlift will have to continue is undecided. The Canadians recently pledged to extend their effort up to April 30, and it seems likely the U.S.-chartered flights will keep going as long.

7 Kids of Family Get Tonsillectomies

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Tuesday was tonsillectomy day at Erlanger Hospital for the children of Mr. and Mrs. James Putnam — all seven of them.

One of the hospital's operating rooms was tied up for seven hours as the children, from Mary, 5, to Mike, 18, trooped through to have their tonsils and adenoids removed.

"The boss," said Putnam in reference to his wife, "said all the kids would have their tonsils and adenoids at once."

"It will save trips to the hospital," she explained.

Committee OKs Vaughn, Gordon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has approved President Johnson's nominations of Jack Hood Vaughn to head the Peace Corps and Lincoln Gordon to fill Vaughn's old post as assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

In each case, the nomination was approved Monday by a vote of 12 to 1, with Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., voting no.

Vaughn testified before the committee Feb. 9, shortly after Johnson named him to replace R. Sargent Shriver as director of the Peace Corps.

150 Attend Annual Tea Held by Hedges Chapel

There were 150 present when the Hedges Chapel Woman's Society of Christian Service held its annual February Tea Saturday at the church.

Altar vases were filled with spring flowers. Guests were greeted by Miss Kay Hay, Miss Jill Butt and Miss Kathy Beers.

Mrs. William Plum Jr., president of the society, welcomed the guests and introduced the following honored guests who are officers of the Chillicothe District WSCS: Mrs. E. F. Wones, president; Mrs. Paul Orr, secretary of membership cultivation and Mrs. Glenn Robinson, historian.

Mrs. David Dill planned the program and Mrs. Judd Dresbach announced the selections. Mrs. Joseph Peters and her daughter, Ann, presented a piano duet, Joy Hay, Melissa Archer, Brenda Brinker and Melissa Plum sang a selection.

Mrs. Paul Spear presented a skit; Nancy Collins, Miriam Purcell, Mary Ann Millar and Becky Young, a vocal quartet from Teays Valley High School, sang.

Mrs. Linda Lowery presented a flute solo accompanied by Mrs. Carolyn Peters. The Metta Larks, Mrs. Carolyn Peters, Mrs. David Dill, Mrs. Donna Fosnaugh and Mrs. Louise Barr, gave a musical skit.

The program closed with a song by the Metta Larks and interpreted by 7th and 8th grade girls from Hedges Chapel, Cathy Dunkle, Robin Spear, Helen Spires, Lois Dill, Clifton Lee, Sandy Scothorn, Connie Collins and Krista Hefflin.

Refreshments were served from a lace covered table centered with an arrangement of spring flowers in a milk glass container. Mrs. Charles Dresbach and Mrs. Jessie Buskirk presided at the tea table.

Calvary EUB Is Scene Of Wedding

Miss Mary E. Manhart, 113 N. Scioto St., and Mr. Charles Schlegler Sr., Route 1, were united in marriage Saturday in the Calvary EUB Church, Mill and Washington Sts., instead of the First EUB Church.

The Rev. G. H. Niswender performed the double ring candlelight ceremony.

Miss Beatrice Mayberry was maid of honor and Mr. James Schlegler served as best man for his father.

Out of city guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clark and family, Detroit, Mich.

CCL Members Plan Guest Day Luncheon

Members of the Child Conservation League will meet 1 p. m. Tuesday at Pickaway Arms, E. Mound St., for the guest day luncheon.

Mrs. Gordon B. Carson, wife of the vice president of Business and Finance at Ohio State University, will be the guest speaker. Her topic will be "Cost of College Education."

The speaker was born in China and attended the American school in Shanghai. She is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and worked four years on a Cleveland newspaper.

Monday Meeting Set By Berger Guild 41

Noreen Smith, interior decorator, will be guest speaker for the meeting 8 p. m. Monday of Berger Hospital Guild No. 41, Mrs. Maynard Burns, 107 Parkview Ave., will be hostess.

TAPED CITIZENSHIP — Dr. Laura Ha, pediatrician at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh, and her husband, Dr. Hongchien Ha, assistant professor of anatomy and cell biology at the University of Pittsburgh, hold the tape recorder on which they have recorded their naturalization ceremony. The Chinese couple met and wed in Taiwan, were educated in Japan, came to the U. S. in 1959.

It was voted to have the annual Mother-Daughter banquet May 9. The executive committee will make the arrangements.

Members of Esther Circle were hostesses for the social hour which followed. Refreshments were served from a table which featured a cherry tree, complete with cherries, in honor of George Washington's birthday.

Dear Abby: Bide Your Time

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My mother refused to give my husband and me consent to marry, so when I turned 18, we eloped. We had my father's consent. In fact, he even helped us. My mother still refuses to recognize our marriage. When she writes a card or letter to me she refuses to put "MRS." in front of my name. She refuses to visit our home when my husband is home, and she won't let him in HER house. She is a very stubborn woman, but she is my mother just the same, and I still love her. I am going to have a baby. Would I be justified in refusing to let my mother see the baby until she accepts my husband?

DEAR ABBY: Please help me get my brother back. He needs me as much as I need him only he doesn't realize it. We were very close all our lives until two years ago. Then he married a girl who ran after him for nearly four years. She is not pretty, not smart and she is always sick with something. My brother told me that her doctor called him in and told him HE would have to make a choice between HER and ME, so he was choosing HER!

DEAR ABBY: Please put a word of warning in your column to girls who marry a "M.O.C." (Mother's only child). I've been married to one for 16 years, and she still calls me in the morning to tell me to be sure Freddy wears his heavy coat because it's cold outside! She is always making remarks like, "I hope you haven't been keeping Freddy out too late. He looks so tired lately. And how come he's thin? Has he been eating regularly?" Abby,

I am a good wife. I don't keep my husband out late and I do feed him properly. I am perfectly capable of taking care of a husband without the help of his mother. How does a wife cope with such a situation?

DEAR END: With understanding, Freddy's mother has not been able to break the habit of worrying about him. Just say, "Thank you, Mother." (That's the least you can do for a mother who still feels the need to be needed. It may happen to you one day.)

Teacher Corps Morale Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., who once taught school, says the administration's new Teacher Corps program may create a morale problem among career teachers earning the same pay with less glamour.

Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II disagrees. Howe told a House Education subcommittee headed by Mrs. Green that the law provides that Teacher Corps trainees are to be paid at the lowest salary level for beginning teachers in the local system. The government will provide the funds to pay them.

The World Today

By BARRY SCHWEID
For James Marlow
WASHINGTON (AP) — The colonists registered a lot of beefs against George III in the Declaration of Independence. Among them "He has made judges on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices and the amount and payment of their salaries."

Such was not to be in the new United States they were setting up.

Once appointed by the President with the Senate's consent, federal judges were to sit "during good behavior" — in effect, for life. They were to be removed only through impeachment by the House and conviction by the Senate.

So was the process laid out in the U.S. Constitution, and so it has been to this day.

Judges have been pressured to quit and some have taken the hint. But only four federal judges have been removed from office, all after impeachment.

The federal judiciary remains essentially independent and there the matter would rest except the problem of the occasional infirm, inept or senile judge who won't go away.

Several states have experimented with easier removal methods and one, California, with apparently notable success. A special commission investigates charges against judges and recommends to the State Supreme Court that they be removed.

Now the experimenting has spread to the federal system. The appellate judges in the 10th Circuit are trying to nudge U.S. Dist. Judge Stephen S. Chandler from the bench by not letting him hear new cases. They are using as a vehicle a federal law that gave the Circuit Courts' Judicial Councils the power to issue "orders for the effective and expeditious administration" of the District Courts.

Chandler, who is 65 and could have retired at full pay, is fighting back and has appealed to the Supreme Court. There the matter still hangs.

Meanwhile, a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., has held hearings on ways to get rid of unfit judges. Everyone agreed easier removal methods are needed, but otherwise there was a decided lack of consensus.

"I suggest that we will be at this job for some time," Tydings said.

So will the American Bar Association, which opened a comprehensive study last August.

Off in the distance, if enough judges and congressmen become exercised about the problem, could be a law — or even a constitutional amendment — setting up new procedures for examining a judge's fitness. But even if unintentional, could the result be a weakening of the judiciary's independence? Could this amount to throwing out the baby with the bath?

Even the Supreme Court has had its share of judges who tarried on the bench long after their own colleagues thought them unfit.

Still, in his 1927 history of the court, Charles Evans Hughes was suspicious of removal and recall proposals—as old as the nation itself.

"The method of appointment, the dignity of the office and the force of public opinion," he wrote, "have proved to be adequate guarantees against breaches of duty which could be regarded as warranting removal."

Hughes, who three years later was to become the nation's 11th chief justice, saw in removal proposals a "desire to obtain a political control of decisions" and warned that judges must operate "in a nonpolitical atmosphere" with "freedom from anxiety as to their futures."

150 Attend Annual Tea Held by Hedges Chapel

There were 150 present when the Hedges Chapel Woman's Society of Christian Service held its annual February Tea Saturday at the church.

Altar vases were filled with spring flowers. Guests were greeted by Miss Kay Hay, Miss Jill Butt and Miss Kathy Beers.

Mrs. William Plum Jr., president of the society, welcomed the guests and introduced the following honored guests who are officers of the Chillicothe District WSCS: Mrs. E. F. Wones, president; Mrs. Paul Orr, secretary of membership cultivation and Mrs. Glenn Robinson, historian.

Mrs. David Dill planned the program and Mrs. Judd Dresbach announced the selections. Mrs. Joseph Peters and her daughter, Ann, presented a piano duet, Joy Hay, Melissa Archer, Brenda Brinker and Melissa Plum sang a selection.

Mrs. Paul Spear presented a skit: Nancy Collins, Miriam Purcell, Mary Ann Miller and Becky Young, a vocal quartet from Teays Valley High School, sang.

Mrs. Linda Lowery presented a flute solo accompanied by Mrs. Carolyn Peters. The Metta Larks, Mrs. Carolyn Peters, Mrs. David Dill, Mrs. Donna Fosnaugh and Mrs. Louise Barr, gave a musical skit.

The program closed with a song by the Metta Larks and interpreted by 7th and 8th grade girls from Hedges Chapel, Cathy Dunkle, Robin Spear, Helen Spires, Lois Dill, Clifton Lee, Sandy Scothorn, Connie Collins and Kristina Heflin.

Refreshments were served from a lace covered table centered with an arrangement of spring flowers in a milk glass container. Mrs. Charles Dresbach and Mrs. Jessie Buskirk presided at the tea table.

Lutheran Church Women Hold Quarterly Meeting

Trinity Lutheran Church Women held their quarterly meeting last night in the Parish House. Pastor Zehner opened the session with prayer and the group sang, "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

Mrs. Edward Cross, secretary of education and program chairman, introduced the speaker, Mrs. David Walters. Mr. and Mrs. Walters spent five years in Madang, New Guinea, as lay missionaries for the American Lutheran Church.

Mr. Walters was in charge of the grocery store in Madang. In this store was a radio station, connected with all of the mission stations in New Guinea.

Orders were radioed in and deliveries made by plane or boat on regular schedules.

The inventory in the store consisted of practically everything a missionary compound might need — from fresh meat to materials for building a modern house. There was also a retail outlet where the natives could buy a variety of items.

Mrs. Walters showed slides of their home, the store, some of the native churches and other places of interest in the Madang area. They are the parents of four children and recently moved back to Circleville. They now reside at 328 E. Main St.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Robert Moon, president, urged members to attend the World Day of Prayer Service to be held 2 p. m. Friday in the Church of the Brethren. She also reminded the group to plan to attend the Columbus Conference of the American Lutheran Church Women May 4 in the Youth Center at the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

It was voted to have the annual Mother-Daughter banquet May 9. The executive committee will make the arrangements.

Members of Esther Circle were hostesses for the social hour which followed. Refreshments were served from a table which featured a cherry tree, complete with cherries, in honor of George Washington's birthday.

To make a "spider web" trim atop a white-frosted cake, melt a little chocolate. With a teaspoon, dribble the chocolate over the frosting in pinwheel fashion. Then quickly run the tip of a small spatula from the center of the cake to the edge in spoke fashion, pulling the chocolate from each band of the pinwheel.

Calvary EUB Is Scene Of Wedding

Miss Mary E. Manhart, 113 N. Scioto St., and Mr. Charles Schlegler Sr., Route 1, were united in marriage Saturday in the Calvary EUB Church, Mill and Washington Sts., instead of the First EUB Church.

The Rev. G. H. Niswender performed the double ring candlelight ceremony.

Miss Beatrice Mayberry was maid of honor and Mr. James Schlegler served as best man for his father.

Out-of-city guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clark and family, Detroit, Mich.

CCL Members Plan Guest Day Luncheon

Members of the Child Conservation League will meet 1 p. m. Tuesday at Pickaway Arms, E. Mound St., for the guest day luncheon.

Mrs. Gordon B. Carson, wife of the vice president of Business and Finance at Ohio State University, will be the guest speaker. Her topic will be "Cost of College Education."

The speaker was born in China and attended the American school in Shanghai. She is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and worked four years on a Cleveland newspaper.

Monday Meeting Set By Berger Guild 41

Noreen Smith, interior decorator, will be guest speaker for the meeting 8 p. m. Monday of Berger Hospital Guild No. 41. Mrs. Maynard Burns, 107 Parkview Ave., will be hostess.

TAPED CITIZENSHIP — Dr. Laura Ha, pediatrician at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh, and her husband, Dr. Hongchien Ha, assistant professor of anatomy and cell biology at the University of Pittsburgh, hold the tape recorder on which they have recorded their naturalization ceremony. The Chinese couple met and wed in Taiwan, were educated in Japan, came to the U.S. in 1959.

Westminster Bible Class Plans Meet

Members of the Westminster Bible Class will meet 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Orin Dreisbach, 163 W. Mound St.

Dear Abby: Bide Your Time

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My mother refused to give my husband and me consent to marry, so when I turned 18, we eloped. We had my father's consent. In fact, he even helped us. My mother still refuses to recognize our marriage. When she writes a card or letter to me she refuses to put "MRS." in front of my name. She refuses to visit our home when my husband is home, and she won't let him in HER house. She is a very stubborn woman, but she is my mother just the same, and I still love her. I am going to have a baby. Would I be justified in refusing to let my mother see the baby until she accepts my husband?

DEAR ABBY: Please help me get my brother back. He needs me as much as I need him only he doesn't realize it. We were very close all our lives until two years ago. Then he married a girl who ran after him for nearly four years. She is not pretty, not smart and she is always sick with something. My brother told me that her doctor called him in and told him HE would have to make a choice between HER and ME, so he was choosing HER!

He said they are moving out of the state very soon because of HER health. When they go I will take a gun and blow my brains out, and it will be all her fault. Sign this.

A LOVING SISTER
DEAR SISTER: If you had sent me your name and address I would have directed you to the nearest Mental Health Clinic in your area. I don't know how sick your brother's wife is, but you are sicker. Please tell your story to a doctor—ANY doctor.

DEAR ABBY: Please put a word of warning in your column to girls who marry a "M.O.C." (Mother's only child). I've been married to one for 16 years, and she still calls me in the morning to tell me to be sure Freddy wears his heavy coat because it's cold outside! She is always making remarks like, "I hope you haven't been keeping Freddy out too late. He looks so tired lately. And how come he's thin?" Abby, he's been eating regularly!

I am a good wife, I don't keep my husband out late and I do feed him properly. I am perfectly capable of taking care of a husband without the help of his mother. How does a wife cope with such a situation?

END OF ROPE
DEAR ABBY: With understanding, Freddy's mother has not been able to break the habit of worrying about him. Just say, "Thank you, Mother." (That's the least you can do for a mother who still feels the need to be needed. It may happen to you one day.)

Teacher Corps Morale Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., who once taught school, says the administration's new Teacher Corps program may create a morale problem among career teachers earning the same pay with less glamour.

Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II disagrees. Howe told a House Education subcommittee headed by Mrs. Green that the law provides that Teacher Corps trainees are to be paid at the lowest salary level for beginning teachers in the local system. The government will provide the funds to pay them.

The World Today

By BARRY SCHWEID
For James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The colonists registered a lot of beefs against George III in the Declaration of Independence. Among them "He has made judges on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices and the amount and payment of their salaries."

Such was not to be in the new United States they were setting up.

Once appointed by the President with the Senate's consent, federal judges were to sit "during good behavior" — in effect, for life. They were to be removed only through impeachment by the House and conviction by the Senate.

So was the process laid out in the U.S. Constitution, and so it has been to this day.

Judges have been pressured to quit and some have taken the hint. But only four federal judges have been removed from office, all after impeachment.

The federal judiciary remains essentially independent and there the matter would rest except the problem of the occasional infirm, inept or senile judge who won't go away.

Several states have experimented with easier removal methods and one, California, with apparently notable success. A special commission investigates charges against judges and recommends to the State Supreme Court that they be removed.

Now the experimenting has spread to the federal system.

The appellate judges in the 10th Circuit are trying to nudge U.S. Dist. Judge Stephen S. Chandler from the bench by not letting him hear new cases. They are using as a vehicle a federal law that gave the Circuit Courts' Judicial Councils the power to issue "orders for the effective and expeditious administration" of the District Courts.

Chandler, who is 65 and could have retired at full pay, is fighting back and has appealed to the Supreme Court. There the matter still hangs.

Meanwhile, a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., has held hearings on ways to get rid of unfit judges. Everyone agreed easier removal methods are needed, but otherwise there was a decided lack of consensus.

"I suggest that we will be at this job for some time," Tydings said.

So will the American Bar Association, which opened a comprehensive study last August.

Off in the distance, if enough judges and congressmen become exercised about the problem, could be a law — or even a constitutional amendment — setting up new procedures for examining a judge's fitness. But even if unintentional, could the result be a weakening of the judiciary's independence? Could this amount to throwing out the baby with the bath?

Even the Supreme Court has had its share of judges who tarried on the bench long after their own colleagues thought them unfit.

Still, in his 1927 history of the court, Charles Evans Hughes was suspicious of removal and recall proposals—as old as the nation itself.

"The method of appointment, the dignity of the office and the force of public opinion," he wrote, "have proved to be adequate guarantees against breaches of duty which could be regarded as warranting removal."

Hughes, who three years later was to become the nation's 11th chief justice, saw in removal proposals a "desire to obtain a political control of decisions" and warned that judges must operate "in a nonpolitical atmosphere" with "freedom from anxiety as to their futures."

I said,
"Show me a filter cigarette that really delivers taste and I'll eat my hat!"

50,000 Ohioans Enrolled in Maize Of Confusing Poverty Programs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The War on Poverty is being fought on tricky terrain in Ohio and elsewhere with an arsenal of complex programs that nearly defy accurate definition.

Even the Ohio Office of Opportunity concedes the maize of projects and how they work is difficult to comprehend. But all the programs have names.

Recently, Medicare Alert, Foster Grandparents, and other new titles were added to the more familiar Head Start, neighborhood Youth Corps, VISTA, Jobs Corp, Work Study, Adult Education, among others.

An estimated 50,000 Ohioans have enrolled in one or another of these programs which have cost $47 million in Ohio since the drive to eliminate hardship got under way a year ago.

Mrs. Lois Rush, research director of the Ohio Office, said the staff has a "bible" it turns to each day to answer questions of local community action groups throughout the state.

"We'd be lost without it," said Mrs. Rush of the bulky "Community Action Program Guide" which spells out instructions for local groups seeking to qualify for federal funds. Ohio now has more than two dozen community action groups covering all but one of the 88 counties and the list is growing. Medina is the only county not yet participating although it could qualify.

The Office of Opportunity, under director Albert G. Giles, was created last February to provide technical assistance and legal answers to community action groups.

These local groups are the core of the anti-poverty effort. They administer all programs and provide the required 10 per cent matching funds. The federal government now pays 90 per cent but may cut it down to 50 per cent this year.

Head Start, an eight-week program designed to help prepare impoverished children for entrance to school, is the only battle so far in which any overall results can be seen.

It reached more than 20,000 pre-school youngsters at 490 centers in Ohio last summer at a cost of $2.8 million.

Giles' staff took a close look at 40 Head Start centers selected at random and found the program was "a tremendous success."

Kindergarten teachers surveyed generally agreed. Mrs. Josephine Zeno, who teaches in Canton, was typical. "My children are doing things my previous classes were not doing until April," she said.

Giles also believes the Neighborhood Youth Corps is off to a good start in Ohio and already has helped move "several hundrod" young people into jobs or drop outs back to the classroom.

More than 20,000 boys and girls between ages 16 and 21 enrolled in the youth corps in the summer of 1965 in a work-training program that so far has cost $13.6 million.

Students from impoverished families in or out of school are paid $1.25 an hour for work on public or private non-profit projects deemed "in the public interest."

Other programs vary widely from community to community and there is no means of keeping track of them regularly except in terms of dollars.

Giles' office has begun a survey to determine the extent to which they have moved.

About $13.5 million of first year funds, for instance, went to community programs. They ranged from increasingly popular neighborhood centers which provide such services as legal aid, employment counseling, and home management advice to newly approved Medicare Alert.

Recently, Ohio community action committees divided a $379,000 federal allocation to sign up Medicare clients among the poor prior to the March 31 deadline.

The federal Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington said as of the first of this year, 3,917 Ohioans had enrolled in

The Circleville Herald, Wed. Feb. 23, 1966 7

Adult Basic Education—a program designed in part to wipe out illiteracy. It had cost $309,462.

There had been 47 small business loans totaling $518,685 while 5,302 Ohioans took part in work experience programs at a cost of $8.2 million. Seventy-eight rural loans totaling $113,200 had been granted Ohioans.

Three job corps centers—two for men and one for women—had 404 participants in a program that cost $5.3 million. This included $4 million for operation of the women's job corps center in Cleveland for two years up to February 1967.

In Vista (Volunteers in Service to America), a sort of domestic Peace Corps, Ohio had 76 participants at a cost of $254,600.

$9 Million U.S. School Aid Received

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Nearly $9 million in federal funds was distributed throughout 55 Ohio counties in January to support 85 projects for compensatory education under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the State Department of Education said Tuesday.

Programs such as remedial reading and mathematics, hearing and speech assistance, special courses for low learners, skill development programs, and health improvement facilities are sponsored under the act, approved last year by the congress.

Projects have also been approved for the improvement of the physical development of inner-city children through elementary level physical education program.

These local groups are the core of the anti-poverty effort. They administer all programs and provide the required 10 per cent matching funds. The federal government now pays 90 per cent but may cut it down to 50 per cent this year.

Head Start, an eight-week program designed to help prepare impoverished children for entrance to school, is the only battle so far in which any overall results can be seen.

It reached more than 20,000 pre-school youngsters at 490 centers in Ohio last summer at a cost of $2.8 million.

Giles' staff took a close look at 40 Head Start centers selected at random and found the program was "a tremendous success."

Kindergarten teachers surveyed generally agreed. Mrs. Josephine Zeno, who teaches in Canton, was typical. "My children are doing things my previous classes were not doing until April," she said.

Giles also believes the Neighborhood Youth Corps is off to a good start in Ohio and already has helped move "several hundred" young people into jobs or drop outs back to the classroom.

More than 20,000 boys and girls between ages 16 and 21 enrolled in the youth corps in the summer of 1965 in a work-training program that so far has cost $13.6 million.

Students from impoverished families in or out of school are paid $1.25 an hour for work on public or private non-profit projects deemed "in the public interest."

Other programs vary widely from community to community and there is no means of keeping track of them regularly except in terms of dollars.

Giles' office has begun a survey to determine the extent to which they have moved.

About $13.5 million of first year funds, for instance, went to community programs. They ranged from increasingly popular neighborhood centers which provide such services as legal aid, employment counseling, and home management advice to newly approved Medicare Alert.

Recently, Ohio community action committees divided a $370,000 federal allocation to sign up Medicare clients among the poor prior to the March 31 deadline.

The federal Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington said as of the first of this year, 3,917 Ohioans had enrolled in

The Circleville Herald, Wed. Feb. 23, 1966 7

Adult Basic Education—a program designed in part to wipe out illiteracy. It had cost $509,462.

There had been 47 small business loans totaling $518,685 while 5,302 Ohioans took part in work experience programs at a cost of $8.2 million. Seventy-eight rural loans totaling $113,200 had been granted Ohioans.

Three job corps centers—two for men and one for women—had 404 participants in a program that cost $5.3 million. This included $4 million for operation of the women's job corps center in Cleveland for two years up to February 1967.

In Vista (Volunteers in Service to America), a sort of domestic Peace Corps, Ohio had 76 participants at a cost of $254,600.

$9 Million U.S. School Aid Received

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Nearly $9 million in federal funds was distributed throughout 55 Ohio counties in January to support 85 projects for compensatory education under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the State Department of Education said Tuesday.

Programs such as remedial reading and mathematics, hearing and speech assistance, special courses for low learners, skill development programs, and health improvement facilities are sponsored under the act, approved last year by the congress.

Projects have also been approved for the improvement of the physical development of inner-city children through elementary level physical education program.

2 Men Are Accused As German Red Spies
ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—A Swiss trial opened Tuesday for two men accused of running a spy ring for Communist East Germany.

The accused are an East German writer, Hans von Oettingen, 46, and 32-year-old Swiss taxi driver, Richard Beeli. Von Oettingen is accused of directing more than 100 espionage cells in West Germany, Sweden and Switzerland. He is said to have recruited Beeli. The two men allegedly operated under the cover of a Zurich news agency called "Round-up Press Service."

U.S. Health Team To Go to Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says he will lead a team of experts to South Viet Nam next month to tackle problems in health and education.

Secretary John W. Gardner discussed his mission with President Johnson Monday and later told newsmen one purpose of the trip is to assess the problems there and try to frame a program.

"This is not a casual effort on our part," Gardner said.

The late Harald Schultz, one of the world's leading field anthropologists, uncovered a wealth of material on the customs and folklore of the Waura, Suyu, Tunkuna and other Amazonian tribes almost untouched by civilization.

Sleep-Teaching Experiment Is Only Partial Success

MOSCOW (AP) — Partial success in a mass experiment with teaching English to sleeping students is reported from the Soviet scientific city of Dubna.

The program of giving lessons just before students went to sleep and repeating them while they slept was especially effective for those who had never studied foreign languages.

But some students failed to finish the course and others began to lag in memorizing after the first 10 or 15 nights.

These results were given by the youth paper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

Students had to be in bed by 10:30 p.m. Light music was played until 10:45 and then a five-minute lesson began. It gave 25 or 30 new words and expressions to learn.

The students sat in bed, following the words from a lesson book and repeating them. The lesson was repeated three times. Then at 11 p.m. lights had to be turned out.

The lesson was repeated in softer tones until midnight. At 6:15 a.m. it began again and was repeated until 6:55. At 7 a.m. students were awakened and at 7:30 they took a new lesson to fix in their minds the overnight vocabulary and related grammar.

The 36-lesson program taught about 1,000 words and expressions.

Vladimir P. Zukhar, who ran the experiment, said some students confidently answered questions in English, but some were not serious enough.

They had failed to realize "that the experiment would require a very serious attitude, that knowledge of the language would not come by itself and that much work would be needed," Zukhar said.

The report said results were checked on 135 men.

Chicago Museum Gets Old Field Name Back

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Natural History Museum will get its old name back March 11 — the Field Museum.

The institution had been the Field Museum, named after the Field family of Chicago, from its founding in 1893 until 1943. Members of the family have donated several million dollars to the museum over the years.

French Test New Train Riding on Air Cushion

PARIS (AP) — French engineers have successfully tested a small, propeller-driven train that rides on a thin air cushion. The vehicle known as an "aerotraine" was driven on a short track outside Paris Monday. It carried four passengers at speeds up to about 84 miles an hour.

The aerotraine, a joint project of private industry and government, is intended to carry commuters between major cities.

Laurelville School Board Names New Executive Head

Glenn Christy has been appointed executive head of the Laurelville School District.

Christy was named by the Laurelville School Board of Education during a special session. Members also accepted the resignation of Herman Massie, effective Feb. 28.

Massie is one of four regional coordinators for school bus transportation in the state.

Pickaway County's supervisor of schools, Robert Seward, also has been named as one of the coordinators. Both men begin a six-week orientation period Mar. 1.

MASSIE has been executive head of Laurelville school since 1963. He will be assigned offices in Portsmouth following the training period in Columbus. His wife, who teaches at Laurelville, is expected to submit her resignation in April.

Christy, who lives in Circleville, has been principal at Laurelville High school since September 1964. He was graduated from Marshall University in Huntington W. Va., and holds a masters degree.

No principal will be appointed for the remainder of the school year, according to the school board.

Rotary Set For Specialty On Thursday

This week's meeting of the Circleville Rotary Club will be in contrast to usual procedure.

Members will meet at the Fairgrounds 4-H and Grange Building for a Farmer Day luncheon. Weekly sessions normally are held at the St. Philip's Church Parish House.

All Rotarians have been requested to bring farmer guests to the luncheon.

The occasion also will mark the 61st birthday of Rotary International. The organization was founded Feb. 23, 1905, in Chicago.

Program speaker for the Thursday session will be O. E. Anderson, executive secretary for the Committee of the Ohio Bankers Assn. The meeting will start at 11:30 a. m. instead of the usual 11:45 time.

Day of Prayer Slated Friday

The annual World Day of Prayer, traditionally held on the first Friday of Lent, will be observed beginning 2 p. m. Friday.

Host church this year will be the Church of the Brethren, located on the corner of S. Pickaway and Logan Sts.

Although the service is sponsored by the Circleville Council of Church Women, the special meeting is open to women of every religious affiliation including non-members.

Some New Guinea tribesmen not yet under government control have pleaded with officials to tax them. Being taxed is the hallmark of civilization, thus a status symbol.

Kemper Cadet In Raiders Group

Cadet J. A. Steve R. Bowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bowers, 921 Circle Drive, has been selected as a member of the Raiders at Kemper Military School and College, Boonville, Mo.

Cadets volunteer and compete for the honor of being a member of the Kemper Raiders. The Raiders, consisting of 35 carefully selected cadets must meet certain qualifications for membership.

Candidates must possess adequate mental and physical characteristics, must have high academic and military grades, a qualifying score of 350 on the PT course, high leadership rating, a qualifying marksmanship score of 100 and a willingness to meet the rugged training program of their extracurricular activities.

Young Hungarians Seek Italy Asylum

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Two young Hungarians abandoned a touring group of fellow workers and sought political asylum here Milan police reported today.

They were identified as Sandor Matsz, 28, and Pal Andras Sipeki, 24, both Budapest residents.

The two left their fellow tourists in Venice and headed for Milan, police said.

OU Planning Appalachia Institutes

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University's Center for Economic Opportunity will conduct at least 21 institutes during the coming year where businessmen can plan how to employ their know-how so poor Appalachia dwellers "can share in the nation's prosperity."

Separate institutes on community development will be tailored to the interests of big business and industry, small businessmen and entrepreneurs, and financial and investment firms in the 12-state region.

The university laid out these plans Tuesday in expanding on what it will do with a $587,703 federal grant for the purpose announced Monday.

Dr. Richard J. Stillman, director of the center, will head the seminars.

"We will first locate the businessmen who can be the leaders in Appalachia," Stillman says. "Through the institutes we will aid these businessmen in discovering how they can implement and complement government programs—national, state, regional and local—in combating poverty."

Tiger Cindermen To Enter Meet at OSU Field House

Circleville track coach Jim Lint will take a team to French Field House, Ohio State University for an amateur meet beginning 7:30 p. m. Friday.

Ribbons will be awarded for the first five places in each event, Lint noted, but no team ratings will be kept. The meet will have divisions for college competitors and women as well as high school competition.

Teays Valley coach Marion Waits also plans to take a group to participate in the meet.

In the field events, Lint reports Mike Ramey will compete in the shot, Bruce Tigner and Doug Pontious in the high jump, Brad Marshall and Steve Dade in the broad jump and Pontious in the pole vault.

Robbie Adkins, a member of the Tiger cross country track team in the fall, will be entered in the mile.

Mel Smith and Gerald McCain will compete in the 1,000 yard run for the Tigers.

In the 600 yard dash, Pontious and Bill Pritchard will be the local entries. Competing in the 70-yard high hurdles are Dade and Tigner.

The 60-yard dash finds Terry Martin and Dade entered. In the 300 yard dash, Larry Payne and Mark Krieger will compete.

The Tiger mile relay team will consist of Pontious, Pritchard, Tom Jenkins and Payne.

The Circleville and Teays Valley track teams have been working out since the first of the year at every opportunity.

Two Grapplers Are Seeded In Sectional

Tom Fletcher, Circleville High School's 175-pound wrestler, was the second seeded grappler for the sectional tournament at Whetstone High School.

Jim Archer, 165-pound grappler, was seeded fourth in his weight class.

They were the only two local grapplers seeded during the pairings held in Columbus Tuesday.

The Sectional starts 1 p. m. Saturday at Whetstone.

Tribe Said Ready To Prove Self

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Birdie Tebbetts isn't predicting where the Cleveland Indians will finish this year, but he says "We now have a club that is ready to prove itself."

"It's no more and no less than that, but it is ready, which is more than we could say a year ago," the manager said Tuesday as he prepared for the official opening of the Tribe's spring training camp Friday.

He named third baseman Max Alvis as a key man for the club this year, along with veteran pitchers Jack Kralick, Ralph Terry and Lee Stange.

Tebbetts said the Indians' young players like Fred Whitfield, Alvis, Vic Davalillo, Larry Brown, Joe Azcue and Pedro Gonzalez are experienced now and "we have every reason to believe they're ready to take over."

"We have expectations of great performances from (pitchers) Sam McDowell and Sonny Siebert," he continued. "Tom Kelley and Steve Hargan are in the same position Sam and Sonny were in a couple of years ago. They have great talent and it might blossom immediately or it may take time."

"But if we're going to win the pennant, we've got to have good, steady performances from our veterans — Stange, Kralick and Terry."

Reds' Chief Protests Court Order

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — "This is completely unfair," complained Cincinnati Reds' owner Bill DeWitt after a Wisconsin judge ordered baseball to produce its financial record books in the state's antitrust suit against the Braves and the National League.

"We should have at least six weeks to produce this," DeWitt said when contacted by telephone in Cincinnati.

Circuit Judge Elmer Roller ordered the financial disclosures Tuesday and gave all National League teams but the Reds until Friday to comply.

The Reds were given until next Wednesday, two days after the case is scheduled to go to trial in Judge Roller's court.

DeWitt was the only National League owner or official to comment on the order vigorously opposed by the league at a hearing Monday.

And DeWitt wouldn't say whether the Reds would obey the ruling. "This is a legal matter that will have to be determined by lawyers," he said. "But we have nothing to hide."

CAGE OFFICIAL BOWS OUT — Ernest (Snap) Ankrom (right) is "turning in his whistle" at the end of the current basketball season. He and his brother Bill (left), have formed what has become one of the most respected officiating teams in the hardwood sport in this area.

Respected Cage Official Duo Work Last Game Together

One of the area's most respected refereeing combinations — Ankrom and Ankrom — worked together as a team for the last game Monday at Westfall.

Ernest (Snap) Ankrom, elder of the brother combination, has announced his retirement. He will retire his striped shirt at the end of the current season.

Bill intends to continue his officiating.

"I'll only catch half as much thunder now," Bill good naturedly comments on his brother's retirement.

SNAP's answer to that is, "I've been carrying the kid too long. It's time to quit."

Snap first donned a striped shirt and acquired a whistle 15 years ago at Clarksburg High School. Since that time he has averaged 20 or more games per season.

The elder Ankrom estimates 95 per cent of his games have been with Bill as his partner.

It was coincidental the brothers' last game was at Westfall High School. Both are graduates of high schools which were in the school district.

Snap attended Muhlenberg Twp. High School where he starred in basketball. He was

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Dick Snyder of Davidson, a senior from North Canton, Ohio, and sophomore Ron Williams of West Virginia, from Weirton, W. Va. near Steubenville, Ohio, have been named to the All-Southern Conference first team in basketball.

Snyder, an All-America candidate, led the conference with a 28.8-point scoring average and the 6-foot-5 standout was fifth in league rebounding, pacing Davidson to an 11-1 Southern record. Williams, the first Negro ever to make All-Southern, averaged 20.5 points for West Virginia.

The Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League are under the guidance of Lynn Patrick.

Logan Elm, Teays Valley and Westfall are all scheduled for tournament action this weekend.

The LE Braves face West Jefferson at 7 p. m. Friday in the Teays Valley sectional. Westfall meets Academy Saturday at the TVHS gymnasium in a tilt beginning at 7 p. m. Teays Valley tangles with Whitehall at 9:30 p. m. in the Coliseum at Columbus.

If Logan Elm and Westfall both win, they will be pitted against each other for the third time this year on Mar. 4.

This third meeting of the two teams presents a unique problem to Coach Larry Wilson of the Mustangs and Keith Merrin of the Braves.

BOTH have the problem of making their players think only of the upcoming game.

Neither Academy nor West Jefferson had particularly impressive records at the time of the tournament drawing two weeks ago. The Logan Elm foe had won six of 13 games and the Westfall opponent six of 14.

Merrin has seen West Jeff in action. He reports they have good size and will be a tough team to beat.

Whitehall and Teays Valley should be evenly matched if past records are any indication of tournament play.

However, the winner of the game faces no easy road on the tournament trail, since they will in all probability meet a tall and rugged Newmark five.

In other tournament action this weekend at Teays Valley, Madison South will meet Canal Winchester at 8:30 p. m. Friday and The Plains will play University at 8:30 Saturday.

The Class A tournament at Chillicothe Friday finds Chillicothe Flaget playing Fairfield-Leesburg at 7 p. m. and Unioto meeting Paint Valley at 8:15 p. m.

On Saturday, Allensville and Laurelville play in the first game while Zane Trace and Adena are pitted in the second.

Havlicek Sparks Celtic Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics were down and apparently out, then in came John Havlicek and they were off.

Boston was trailing the San Francisco Warriors 57-37 in the second period and 63-48 at halftime on the West Coast Tuesday night.

The Celtics then fought back to tie it 84-84 late in the third period. In came Havlicek, who scored 13 points in nine minutes, and the Celtics raced to 109-99 lead and an eventual 116-108 victory.

The triumph kept the Celtics 1½ games ahead of Philadelphia, which defeated Detroit 117-112, in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association and boosted them 3½ ahead of idle Cincinnati.

Baldwin-Wallace, UofC Coaching Strategy Tripped

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The wrong Ohio college basketball coach, the way it turned out, planned to leave his first team home on a Tuesday night roadtrip.

Cincinnati's Tay Baker might as well have done what Baldwin-Wallace mentor Hughie Thompson intended to do had he been able to get away with it.

Nobody but Wichita wins at Wichita, Baker found out again as his Bearcats lost 86-76 and missed wrapping up the Missouri Valley Conference Championship.

Thompson was thwarted too, in his announced intention to send only his reserves to play Capital in B-W's last regular season game. He wanted to save the varsity for the Ohio Conference tournament opening Thursday night, but OC Commissioner A. N. (Chick) Smith of Elyria got wind of the plans and scuttled them.

As it turned out, B-W edged the last-placers 94-88 with regulars playing the entire second half after seeing only brief service the opening period.

Cincinnati, meanwhile, felt the full force of the Wichita hex when even 61 per cent field goal accuracy by the Bearcats the first half left them down 42-40 at intermission.

Warren Armstrong's 25 points and 18 rebounds led Wichita to its 14th straight home triumph. Don Rolfe had 20 points for the Bearcats.

Even having failed its "impossible" task, Cincinnati (9-4) leaves Wichita (7-4) an almost impossible task of catching it for the MVC crown.

The Bearcats have one league game left, against Drake in Cincinnati where the Cats are virtually invincible. If they win the Shockers to get a co-title must win their last three—all away.

And Wichita has yet to win on the road this season.

In other Ohio action, Miami held off Xavier 76-72; Ohio U. whipped Marthall 92-78 and Kent State clipped Bowling Green 79-66 in Mid-American Conference play; Wilmington upset Malone 98-70 in the Mid-Ohio; John Carroll beat Western Reserve 75-66 in the Presidents'; Anderson (Ind.) bombed Ohio Northern 93-73, and Bliss surprised Walsh 90-74.

Miami, 17-5, fought off improving Xavier, 13-11, after the Musketeers sliced a 58-38 gap to 74-72. Jim Hallahan's two free throws sealed the verdict. X's Bob Quick led scorers with 21 points.

Ohio U won without injured regulars Ken Fowlkes and Mike Hammond, thanks to 19 points by sub starter Marshall Hatcher and 17 by Fred Cluff coming off the bench.

Larry Horner's 26 led Kent in its MAC finale won on 35 of 42 at the foul line by the Flashes, who rallied from a seven-point halftime deficit at Bowling Green.

Kentucky Prep Team Chalks 157-56 Victory

LILY, Ky. (AP) — Lily High School annihilated McCreary County High Tuesday night 157-56, believed to be the highest score ever by a Kentucky high school basketball team.

Lily's Larry Smith outscored McCreary County's entire team. Smith, a 5-foot-11 senior guard, finished with 58 points. Lily led at halftime 87-34.

Rod and Gun Club Holds Safety Course

The Williamsport Rod and Gun Club completed a hunter safety course by graduating eight youths from the area, it was reported by Russell K. Tippet, Pickaway County game protector.

Sponsored and approved by the National Rifle Assn., the 4-hour course stressed the 10 commandments of gun safety.

All students had a chance to handle nine different types of guns under adult supervision.

Receiving NRA safe hunter patches and student identification cards were Chuck Christopher, Patrick Whaley, Eddie Fullen Jr., Charles Fullen, Mike Puckett, Jerry Williams, J. A. Clark and David Fletcher.

James Francis Clark was in charge of the course for the gun club.

Not everyone. In this chilly weather, some people will order their air conditioning.

Yes, you read it right. Air conditioning.

What kind of nut would order whole-house Gas air conditioning on a day like this?

Probably somebody kooky enough to want his whole house cool, free from dust and pollen from the very first hot night of summer. Some odd ball who realizes that Gas air conditioning is the quietest, most economical, longest-lasting and most trouble-free he can get. Some character who has had it with roaring, drafty window units and wants to add year-round comfort right to his existing Gas furnace.

These nuts know they can have a three-ton capacity Gas central air conditioning system, including normal installation, for just $13.00 a month (nothing down, nothing to pay until May). And they know they can take up to ten full years to pay.

If this makes sense to you, too, slip one arm out of your straitjacket and fill in the no-obligation coupon. Mail it for the complete facts.

Bums' Whizzes Seek Filthy Lucre

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If money is the root of all evil, the Los Angeles Dodgers — who've reaped bushels of the sinful stuff in recent years — seem to be in the path of some expensive salvation.

The Bums' saviors — pitching whizzes Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, and shortstop Maury Wills — are aiming at parting the Dodgers from some of that filthy lucre. More than a million, to be far from exact.

Nobody's saying anything about exact figures, but one source Tuesday said Koufax is seeking $600,000 on a three-year contract and Drysdale is after $450,000 on a similar deal. Another source said Koufax and Drysdale each sought $500,000 on three-year contracts.

And what about Wills, the Dodgers' super base-swiper? Wills said earlier he is willing to be angelic and settle for "the same money" as the two ace pitchers. This was before the new $1-million figure was revealed.

And the Dodgers' reaction? Well, it went this way: "No question, Koufax and Drysdale are extremely valuable players," said Vice President and General Manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi.

"They want a lot of money, and I want to give them a lot, but their idea of the word 'lot' might be different than mine. "It is true that I have been thinking in terms of around $100,000, but nothing has been settled on a figure. I haven't made them a formal offer yet," he added.

Koufax, 30, a two-time Cy Young Award winner who won 28 games last season, was not available for comment.

Drysdale, 29, however, said "I will not comment on the figures, which would put me in the position of negotiating through the newspapers."

"However," he added, "Sandy and I are grown up and this is a business affair. We want to handle it the way we feel right and in a proper manner for all concerned."

"It's not up to me to say what the terms are, or to comment on the position of our attorney," Drysdale explained. He is also a Cy Young Award winner.

The Dodgers, of course, should have cash enough to meet the demands, however much it seems to hurt.

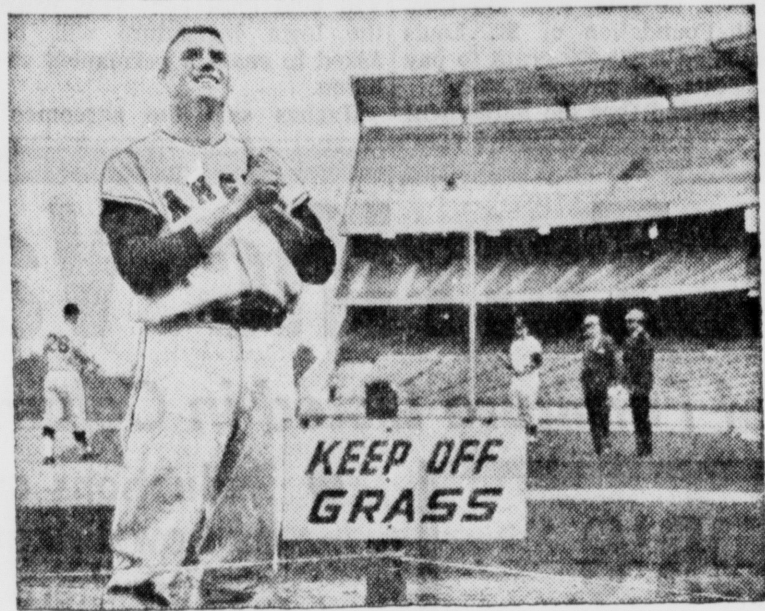

They've had four golden years in Dodger Stadium, setting attendance records right and left. Season attendance figures have bobbed around the 2.5-million mark.

And even the front office concedes that Koufax on the mound is good for an extra 8,000 to 10,000 fans per game, and that Drysdale and Wills are also strong magnets.

It is generally believed here that Drysdale received $75,000 last year and Koufax $74,000.

To promote baseball attendance in 1966, the Kansas City Athletics offered fans a book of $55 worth of scrip for $50, to be used at any time in exchange for tickets.

Hollywood Generally OKs Nominations for 'Oscars'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Well done. That was the general feeling in town this week as the film industry received news of the 38th annual Academy Award nominations.

The oft-maligned Academy voters seem to have performed their function without fear or favor. They were not duped by massive trade-paper ad campaigns, nor did they display noticeable loyalty to big studios or oldtimers.

As in the 1964 nominations, there was a distinct British flavor. But the Academy voters can't help it if the British are such superior actors.

Gone are the days when the Oscar was a quaint local custom; the old boy is getting more international every year. The most remarkable evidence of this was the nomination of Japanese Hiroshi Teshigahara for his direction of "Woman in the Dunes," a film that didn't receive a major release.

Hollywood can be provincial about admitting achievements by foreign directors. Example: the Directors Guild didn't even nominate David Lean ("Doctor Zivago") for its annual award. The Academy corrected the oversight.

The voters were not swayed by production costs. Neither "The Greatest Story Ever Told" ($20 million), "The Great Race" ($12 million) nor "The Agony and the Ecstasy" ($8 million) received a major nomination. Curiously, each received five minor nominations.

Two of the best-picture nominees, "Darling" and "A Thousand Clowns," were in the neighborhood of million-dollar films, which is practically a poverty area in today's market. The other three are super-special: "Doctor Zhivago," "The Sound of Music," "Ship of Fools."

Who will be the winners? At this point it looks like a two-way race in the major categories: two Julies as best actress — Andrews in "The Sound of Music" and Christie in "Darling"; Oskar Werner ("Ship of Fools") vs. Lee Marvin ("Cat Ballou"); "Doctor Zhivago" vs. "The Sound of Music."

But watch out for those dark horses.

Grocer Wins Pool, Treats His Patrons

WOOTTON, England (AP) — A grocer named Valentine Day won $196,000 — all tax free — in the British soccer pool and promptly announced a free week's supply of groceries for all his customers.

Otherwise, he said, he'll continue business as usual.

Day, 54, explained: "I have always promised my customers that if ever I won on the pool I would give them a week's supply."

"But this is not going to change my way of life. I shall be starting work at 6:30 tomorrow morning and opening up at the usual time."

"But I might treat myself to a holiday."

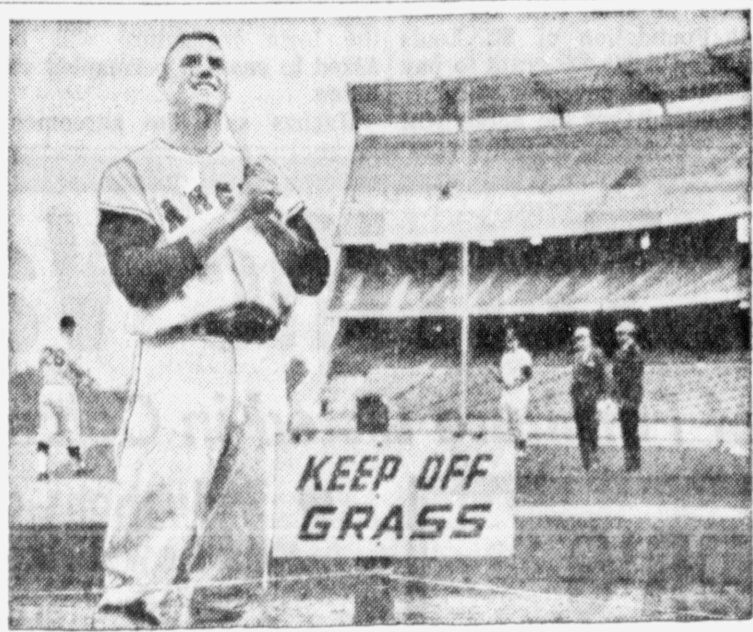

Day won his prize by correctly predicting tie games in last Saturday's British soccer games. There were only eight ties altogether — and he forecast all of them.

The voters were not swayed by production costs. Neither "The Greatest Story Ever Told" ($20 million), "The Great Race" ($12 million) nor "The Agony and the Ecstasy" ($8 million) received a major nomination. Curiously, each received five minor nominations.

Two of the best-picture nominees, "Darling" and "A Thousand Clowns," were in the neighborhood of million-dollar films, which is practically a poverty area in today's market. The other three are super-specials: "Doctor Zhivago," "The Sound of Music," "Ship of Fools."

Who will be the winners? At this point it looks like a two-way race in the major categories: two Julies as best actress — Andrews in "The Sound of Music" and Christie in "Darling"; Oskar Werner ("Ship of Fools") vs. Lee Marvin ("Cat Ballou"); "Doctor Zhivago" vs. "The Sound of Music."

But watch out for those dark horses.

Wichita Home Magic Sinks Bearcat '5'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wichita's home - court magic mesmerized the Cincinnati Bearcats for the fifth straight year and kept the Ohioans from winning the Missouri Valley Conference basketball championship.

Wichita's 86-76 victory was one of the highlights of a busy Tuesday night in college basketball.

Wake Forest upset the nationally second-ranked Duke Blue Devils 99-98 in overtime, Michigan State climbed within one game of first-place Michigan in the Big Ten race by edging Illinois 68-66 and Southern Methodist whipped Texas A&M 82-65 to tie the Aggies for first place in the Southwest Conference.

All were home - court triumphs.

Houston's Cougars won their 14th straight by bombing Texas Wesleyan at home 152-108, but fell four points shy of breaking Furman's 155 points, the NCAA major record for a single game.

San Francisco and U. of Pacific remained tied for first at 3-1 in the West Coast Athletic Conference. The Dons, playing at home, whipped Santa Clara 93-80. UOP scored an 80-61 road victory over the St. Mary's Gaels.

Just like they did in 1962 when they broke a 27-game Cincinnati winning streak and again in 1963 when they shattered a 37-game Cincinnati winning streak, the Wheatshockers were supreme in their Wichita Roundhouse. They have won 61 of 66 there over the last five years.

Cincinnati led at 66-65 before Wichita put it away with a nine-point spree in the last five minutes. Warren Armstrong, 6-foot-2 sophomore, led Wichita with 25 points and 18 rebounds to keep the Shockers alive in the MVC with a 7-4 record. Don Roifes' 20 points topped Cincinnati, now 9-4 in league play.

The Bearcats can clinch a tie for the MVC title by beating Drake Saturday.

Wake Forest got three points in the last 13 seconds to tie Duke 90-90 in regulation time then beat the Blue Devils on Bob Leonard's eight points in the overtime.

Duke, ahead at one time by 15 points, led 93-90 when Paul Long made the first of two free-throw tries. He missed the second, but Paul Crinkley tapped in the rebound to force the extra period.

The Deacons, who had lost eight straight to Duke, jumped ahead 94-90 in the overtime and stayed ahead on Leonard's three baskets and two free throws. Long's 31 points paced Wake Forest. Jack Marin got 35 points for Duke, the only team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action.

Two free throws each by John Bailey and Matt Aitch in the last 45 seconds won for Michigan State over Illinois. That gave the Spartans a 68-62 lead, enough to offset two Illini baskets in the closing seconds.

Grocer Wins Pool, Treats His Patrons

WOOTTON, England (AP) — A grocer named Valentine Day won $196,000 — all tax free — in the British soccer pool and promptly announced a free week's supply of groceries for all his customers.

Otherwise, he said, he'll continue business as usual.

Day, 54, explained:

"I have always promised my customers that if ever I won on the pool I would give them a week's supply."

"But this is not going to change my way of life. I shall be starting work at 6:30 tomorrow morning and opening up at the usual time."

"But I might treat myself to a holiday."

Day won his prize by correctly predicting the games in last Saturday's British soccer games. There were only eight ties altogether — and he forecast all of them.

Quirk in Law Seen Boosting Bankruptcies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Without meaning to, the 1965 Ohio General Assembly made it possible for Ohioans already deeply in debt to borrow themselves on in to bankruptcy, an official of the Ohio Bankers Association claims.

O. E. Anderson, executive manager of the bankers' group, referred in a statement to a "loophole" in a new banking law permitting corporations to make loans by taking second mortgages on personal property.

Anderson said a recent opinion by Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe held that corporations may do this by affiliating with small loan companies "beyond the intent of the legislature."

These corporations are permitted to make loans on personal property "for periods up to five years, and at total interest and service charges and in amounts well above those permitted under the small loan law itself," Anderson said.

He added: "Instead of only 25 or 30 so-called second mortgage lenders operating in Ohio prior to 1965, now hundreds of 'new' lenders, in practically all instances operating out of the same offices and with the same employees as their affiliated small loan companies, are making loans far in excess of the legal limit set for small loan companies themselves."

"In most loans by these so-called second mortgage companies, no mortgage on real estate is involved as was the contemplation of the legislature."

"Hundreds of persons already overburdened with debt now are being encouraged to take out larger, long term loans at much higher rates, a fact that could lead many of them into bankruptcy."

Anderson called it a "foregone conclusion" that one of the first matters of the next legislature will be to "stop this violation of intent."

SOUTH COURT PTA

The South Court St. Parent Teacher Assn. discussed a ham dinner which it will sponsor April 15 at the school as a fund raising project.

Mrs. Russell Skaggs, chairman of the ways and means committee, and Mrs. Ralph Ankrom will be in charge. Parents were urged to participate in the program.

Mrs. Robert Litter spoke on the Head Start Project held last summer for eight weeks at Walnut St. School.

Refreshments were served at the end of the program.

Westfall Employs Teachers for Remedial Reading

Judson Lanman, executive head of the Westfall School District, has announced the employment of three teachers to teach the remedial reading program in the district.

The program funds were made available through Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. The teachers are Twila West at William sport; Wanda Higgins, half-time, at Williamsport; and Mabel Stoor at Darby.

In board action taken this week, Mrs. Elizabeth Sale was hired as music teacher at Darby and Jackson schools, replacing Mrs. Eloise Cheetham who resigned because of health.

The board granted permission to the seniors at Westfall High School to participate in Business - Industry - Education Day in Circleville Mar. 29.

Science Fair Due at Amanda

The sixth annual Amanda-Clearcreek Science Fair will be held Monday at the Amanda School and on Tuesday at the Stoutsville School.

Entries, related to the fields of mathematics and the sciences, will be from students of grades 4-12.

Judging of the various projects will be from 10 a. m. until noon. Exhibits will be on display for students and parents from 12:30 to 8 p. m.

Entries will be displayed in the gymnasium of the respective buildings.

Winners of the Amanda-Clearcreek event will represent their school at Otterbein College in the district Science Fair and will be competing for an all-expense paid trip to the National Science Fair.

7 West States Eye Water Pact

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After half a century of squabbling over the Colorado River's increasingly vital water, seven Western states are about to get together on a plan to tap one of the major rivers of three other states.

The plan could eventually cost more than $12 billion.

"This is not just a regional problem," a water expert says. "The rest of the country will eat better if the West works out an equitable way of dividing its water."

The plan envisions:

1. Immediate start on construction of a $1.2-billion project to move Colorado River water southward to Arizona's booming Phoenix and Tucson areas.

2. Eventual construction of an aqueduct linking the heavily used Colorado with either the little-exploited Columbia River, which has 10 times the Colorado's flow, or its closer tributary, the Snake River. Hookup with the Columbia would cost $11 billion, with the Snake $4 billion.

The big hitch, of course, is opposition from Washington and Oregon, which border on the Columbia, and Idaho, through which the Snake flows.

Representatives of the seven Colorado River basin states — Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada and California — agreed at a meeting here Jan. 27 on most of the technical language of a bill to be submitted to the House subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation.

The proposed legislation calls for a quick start on the big central Arizona project, and also for a massive survey of ways to channel additional water into the Colorado so that other users of that river, primarily California, will have enough for their growing populations too.

The legislation would not call for joining the Colorado with the Columbia or the Snake—feasibility of that is left for the survey to determine. But most water experts say the Columbia and the Snake are about the only sources big enough to give the Colorado's users the amount of water they need.

The Jan. 27 agreement was a major accomplishment. It meant that the Colorado basin states were ready to stop quarreling amongst themselves over how to split up the dwindling waters of the Colorado — and start looking for ways of increasing the Colorado's flow.

The Colorado basin's plan would require some form of federal funding, thus taxing even the citizens of distant states, but proponents say it holds the key to future prosperity of a vast area consuming a large portion of those states' products.

This is not, of course, the lure held out to the little-industrialized Northwestern states. Advocates of the Colorado basin plan hope to overcome their opposition to tapping the Columbia or Snake rivers by:

1. Including irrigation and power projects which the Northwest sorely needs.

2. Pointing out the pump-priming effect of spending billions on construction of the aqueduct, which could be up to 1,000 miles long.

Although some may regard the conflict as just one more squabble over water in the West, its outcome will affect the whole country.

Some experts believe the West Coast someday will be the center of the United States' population. California is already the most populous state in the Union. And the major source of water for its new millions — the Colorado — is dwindling. Once estimated to have an annual flow of 18 million acre feet, in recent years it has dropped as low as 12 million. And of this the United States has guaranteed at least 1.5 million will flow down into Mexico.

Engineers' Observance In Progress

National Engineers' Week is being observed this week. As in the past the observance is held during the week of George Washington's Birthday.

"Engineering — Creative Resource for Progress" was selected as the theme for 1966. It calls attention to engineering as a vital resource for technological and scientific progress.

The nationwide observance features high school career conferences, guided tours through industrial plants, talks by engineers before student and civic groups and other local activities by engineering organizations.

Purpose of this is to call attention to the importance of a sound educational background in mathematics and physical sciences.

A CAREER in engineering offers a young person today the chance of an active role in such challenging fields as the exploration of space, nucleonics, computers, instrumentation and new concepts in structures and transportation.

Engineers are putting the physical sciences to work to solve human problems and to satisfy human needs. And the engineering manpower which this nation can put forth, both in numbers and in quality, will be a vital factor in the free world's struggle against aggression.

A career in engineering is a career dedicated to using mathematics and the basic physical sciences to building for the future.

In 1943, Allied bombers made a massive raid on Messina and Palermo, Sicily.

Ten years ago — Six persons were killed and 100 injured when a Pennsylvania Railroad express was derailed near Odenton, Md.

Five years ago — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld warned Congolese leaders that the U.N. would back its Security Council's orders with force, if necessary, to end the unrest in the Congo.

One year ago — Fire wrecked the Black Muslim Mosque in New York; fears arose of a feud over the assassination of Malcolm X, the leader of a rival group of Black Muslims.

Church Group Favors Nod To Red China

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The General Board of the National Council of Churches is on record today as favoring the admission of Red China to the United Nations.

Members of the board approved the wide-ranging policy statement Thursday, 90 to 3, on the first day of a four-day conference.

The board's statement also proposed that a study be made of possible diplomatic recognition of the Chinese government. There was one abstention when the standing vote was taken.

The declaration urged the United States to pursue a policy of support for the seating of Red China in the United Nations "under conditions which take into account the welfare, and political status of Formosa (Taiwan, seat of the Nationalist Chinese government)".

The General Board is the policy maker for the National Council between triennial meetings of the group's General Assembly. The General Assembly, which meets in December at Miami Beach, Fla., is the only body that can overrule a General Board action.

The Red China statement was a recommendation of the National Council's World Order Study Conference which met here last October. The study conference recommended a similar proposal in 1958 but the General Board took no action on it at that time.

Apollo Shot Is Delayed By Weather

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Weather experts studied cloud patterns today, hoping for a break that would enable the space agency to reschedule the first launching of an unmanned Apollo moonship for Thursday.

A Saturn 1B, most powerful rocket ever built by the United States, was to have boosted the Apollo into space today. But the shot was postponed Tuesday night when weathermen forecast heavy clouds, wind and rain in the Cape Kennedy area.

Meteorologists planned to meet at 4:30 p. m. to determine if conditions might be acceptable for a launching at 7:45 a. m. Thursday.

The Delta which is to launch the satellite, named ESSA 2 is a proven rocket which can be fired in a rain storm if necessary because it does not require the photographic coverage needed for a new booster like the Saturn 1B.

If something should go wrong with the 1B, the camera record could help pinpoint the trouble. The ESSA 2 firing, scheduled for 8:58 a. m., would be shifted back to Friday if the Saturn-Apollo shot goes Thursday.

The Saturn 1B is to loft the Apollo 310 miles into space and ram it back through the atmosphere at 18,000 miles an hour to determine how well it withstands blazing re-entry heat.

The spacecraft is similar to one which three astronauts are to ride into earth orbit late this year and to the moon within four years.

Warren County Gets Development Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Warren County, Ohio, is one of an additional 17 counties in 12 states now qualified for federal aid under the economic development program passed by Congress last year.

The Economic Development Administration announced today that the Ohio county has qualified for all types of aid including public works grants and loans, business loans and technical assistance.

Baby Boy Suffocates

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Gary Lee Elzer, 7-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Elzer, was found dead in his bed Tuesday and the coroner's office ruled he died of suffocation.

Amish, Iowa Reach School Accord

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes announced here Tuesday a new "statement of understanding" designed to solve, temporarily at least, the long standing school dispute with the Amish.

He said that under terms of the agreement, two Amish schools will be rented to the Oelwein Community School District so that they will become part of the public school system.

The school district will put state-certified teachers into the schools, he said, with the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis providing a $15,000 grant to pay the costs, the governor said. He added that the agreement includes the right of the Amish to provide instruction in the German language in the schools for at least two hours a week. There will be no religious instruction in the schools, Hughes added.

Hughes said the agreement will hold until next year when the Iowa legislature will be asked to enact a permanent solution. Hughes said the agreement provides a stop gap solution for what he called "one of the most sensitive problems in human relations that we have ever encountered in this state."

Until Hughes got both sides to agree to a moratorium, 12 Amish fathers were fined repeatedly for refusing to send their children to state-approved schools, or to provide state-accredited teachers for their own schools.

Use The Classifieds

Here Is the Reason:

National growth, mergers, expansions in today's computer world make it necessary for the small independent to seek and use all the knowledge and wisdom available to be successful.

For this reason we are changing our methods to a more active participation of companies and syndicates giving the aid.

We must co-ordinate our buying which means different lines, colors, styles, displays, and advertising will be necessary and the first step is the selling of much of the present merchandise to make room for the new.

The store is now jam packed with exceptionally well styled, good quality furniture and the sale prices makes them extremely good bargains!

We can't tell you more about our plans now, but you'll be pleasantly surprised.

7 West States Eye Water Pact

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After half a century of squabbling over the Colorado River's increasingly vital water, seven Western states are about to get together on a plan to tap one of the major rivers of three other states.

The plan could eventually cost more than $12 billion.

"This is not just a regional problem," a water expert says. "The rest of the country will eat better if the West works out an equitable way of dividing its water."

The plan envisions: 1. Immediate start on construction of a $1.2-billion project to move Colorado River water southward to Arizona's booming Phoenix and Tucson areas.

2. Eventual construction of an aqueduct linking the heavily used Colorado with either the little-exploited Columbia River, which has 10 times the Colorado's flow, or its closer tributary, the Snake River. Hookup with the Columbia would cost $11 billion, with the Snake $4 billion.

The big hitch, of course, is opposition from Washington and Oregon, which border on the Columbia, and Idaho, through which the Snake flows.

Representatives of the seven Colorado River basin states — Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada and California — agreed at a meeting here Jan. 27 on most of the technical language of a bill to be submitted to the House subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation.

The proposed legislation calls for a quick start on the big central Arizona project, and also for a massive survey of ways to channel additional water into the Colorado so that other users of that river, primarily California, will have enough for their growing populations too.

The legislation would not call for joining the Colorado with the Columbia or the Snake—feasibility of that is left for the survey to determine. But most water experts say the Columbia and the Snake are about the only sources big enough to give the Colorado's users the amount of water they need.

The Jan. 27 agreement was a major accomplishment. It meant that the Colorado basin states were ready to stop quarreling amongst themselves over how to split up the dwindling waters of the Colorado — and start looking for ways of increasing the Colorado's flow.

The Colorado basin's plan would require some form of federal funding, thus taxing even the citizens of distant states, but proponents say it holds the key to future prosperity of a vast area consuming a large portion of those states' products.

This is not, of course, the lure held out to the little-industrialized Northwestern states. Advocates of the Colorado basin plan hope to overcome their opposition to tapping the Columbia of Snake rivers by:

1. Including irrigation and power projects which the Northwest sorely needs.

2. Pointing out the pump-priming effect of spending billions on construction of the aqueduct, which could be up to 1,000 miles long.

Although some may regard the conflict as just one more squabble over water in the West, its outcome will affect the whole country.

Some experts believe the West Coast someday will be the center of the United States' population. California is already the most populous state in the Union. And the major source of water for its new millions — the Colorado — is dwindling. Once estimated to have an annual flow of 18 million acre feet, in recent years it has dropped as low as 12 million. And of this the United States has guaranteed at least 1.5 million will flow down into Mexico.

Apollo Shot Is Delayed By Weather

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Weather experts studied cloud patterns today, hoping for a break that would enable the space agency to reschedule the first launching of an unmanned Apollo moonship for Thursday.

A Saturn IB, most powerful rocket ever built by the United States, was to have boosted the Apollo into space today. But the shot was postponed Tuesday night when westerly forecast heavy clouds, wind and rain in the Cape Kennedy area.

Meteorologists planned to meet at 4:30 p. m. to determine if conditions might be acceptable for a launching at 7:45 a. m. Thursday.

The Delta which is to launch the satellite, named ESSA 2 is a proven rocket which can be fired in a rain storm if necessary because it does not require the photographic coverage needed for a new booster like the Saturn IB.

If something should go wrong with the IB, the camera record could help pinpoint the trouble.

The ESSA 2 firing, scheduled for 8:58 a. m., would be shifted back to Friday if the Saturn-Apollo shot goes Thursday.

The Saturn IB is to loft the Apollo 310 miles into space and ram it back through the atmosphere at 18,000 miles an hour to determine how well it withstands blazing re-entry heat.

The spacecraft is similar to one which three astronauts are to ride into earth orbit late this year and to the moon within four years.

Warren County Gets Development Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Warren County, Ohio, is one of an additional 17 counties in 12 states now qualified for federal aid under the economic development program passed by Congress last year.

The Economic Development Administration announced today that the Ohio county has qualified for all types of aid including public works grants and loans, business loans and technical assistance.

Baby Boy Suffocates

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Gary Lee Elzer, 7-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Elzer, was found dead in his bed Tuesday and the coroner's office ruled he died of suffocation.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Wednesday, Feb. 23, the 54th day of 1966. There are 311 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1944 American forces raised the flag on top of Mt. Suribachi after four days of steady fighting to seize the Japanese stronghold on Iwo Jima.

On this date
In 1847, Gen. Zachary Taylor became a national hero when he turned back a superior Mexican force led by Gen. Santa Ana at a pass north of Saltillo.

In 1927, President Calvin Coolidge signed the bill establishing a federal radio commission.

In 1942, Japanese forces conquered the Island of Bali.

In 1943, Allied bombers made a massive raid on Messina and Palermo, Sicily.

Ten years ago — Six persons were killed and 100 injured when a Pennsylvania Railroad express was derailed near Odenton, Md.

Five years ago — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld warned Congolese leaders that the U.N. would back its Security Council's orders with force, if necessary, to end the unrest in the Congo.

One year ago — Fire wrecked the Black Muslim Mosque in New York; fears arose of a feud over the assassination of Malcolm X, the leader of a rival group of Black Muslims.

Church Group Favors Nod To Red China

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The General Board of the National Council of Churches is on record today as favoring the admission of Red China to the United Nations.

Members of the board approved the wide-ranging policy statement Thursday, 90 to 3, on the first day of a four-day conference.

The board's statement also proposed that a study be made of possible diplomatic recognition of the Chinese government. There was one abstention when the standing vote was taken.

The declaration urged the United States to pursue a policy of support for the seating of Red China in the United Nations "under conditions which take into account the welfare... and political status of Formosa (Taiwan, seat of the Nationalist Chinese government)."

The General Board is the policy maker for the National Council between triennial meetings of the group's General Assembly. The General Assembly, which meets in December at Miami Beach, Fla., is the only body that can overrule a General Board action.

The Red China statement was a recommendation of the National Council's World Order Study Conference which met here last October. The study conference recommended a similar proposal in 1958 but the General Board took no action on it at that time.

Amish, Iowa Reach School Accord

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes announced here Tuesday a new "statement of understanding" designed to solve, temporarily at least, the long standing school dispute with the Amish.

He said that under terms of the agreement, two Amish schools will be rented to the Oelwein Community School District so that they will become part of the public school system.

The school district will put state-certified teachers into the schools, he said, with the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis providing a $15,000 grant to pay the costs, the governor said.

He added that the agreement includes the right of the Amish to provide instruction in the German language in the schools for at least two hours a week. There will be no religious instruction in the schools, Hughes added.

Hughes said the agreement will hold until next year when the Iowa legislature will be asked to enact a permanent solution.

Hughes said the agreement provides a stop gap solution for what he called "one of the most sensitive problems in human relations that we have ever encountered in this state."

Until Hughes got both sides to agree to a moratorium, 12 Amish fathers were fined repeatedly for refusing to send their children to state-approved schools, or to provide state-accredited teachers for their own schools.

Here Is the Reason:

National growth, mergers, expansions in today's computer world make it necessary for the small independent to seek and use all the knowledge and wisdom available to be successful.

For this reason we are changing our methods to a more active participation of companies and syndicates giving the aid.

We must co-ordinate our buying which means different lines, colors, styles, displays, and advertising will be necessary and the first step is the selling of much of the present merchandise to make room for the new.

The store is now jam packed with exceptionally well styled, good quality furniture and the sale prices makes them extremely good bargains!

We can't tell you more about our plans now, but you'll be pleasantly surprised.
